ABSTRACT

This manual is a cross-referenced directory to film industry personnel and services available in the State of Texas. The Who's Who section contains an alphabetical listing of companies and individuals in the state engaged in some aspect of motion picture or video production. These listings include brief summaries of each company and individuals' skills or services, notable credits, affiliations, and honors. The Pre-Production, Production, and Post-Production sections list alphabetically film-related services and skills such as art directors, set construction, producers, production managers, and editors. The Video section lists the services and skills related to video. A Miscellaneous section contains information which might be useful to either film or video producers during some phase of their production, e.g., attorneys, unions, theater groups. The Major City Information section provides detailed information about 31 cities, including the climate, air charter, and hotels. The Addenda provides information about state laws which affect the filmmaker. (Author/LLS)

THE TEXAS FILM COMMISSION

The Texas Film Commission, Office of the Governor, was created in 1971 to attract motion picture production to Texas, and to encourage the growth of the Texas film industry. The services of the Commission are extended to producers of all types of motion pictures—feature films, commercials, documentaries, educational, and industrial films.

The services of the Film Commission include:

1. LOCATION SCOUTING. Assistance in finding locations and in obtaining permission to film them. The Commission has compiled a color still photograph collection of over 5,000 shots of Texas towns, landscapes, and architecture. Prints available to producers upon request.

2. LIAISON. Assistance in making contacts and obtaining cooperation from state, local, and federal government agencies, as well as from private citizens and institutions.

3. PREPRODUCTION COORDINATION. Providing access to information on film services and facilities available in Texas, on the laws of the state pertaining to film production, on weather, accommodations, transportation, etc.

GOVERNOR

February 11, 1981

TO THE MOTION PICTURE AND VIDEO INDUSTRY:

The Texas Film Commission was established in 1971 as part of the Governor's Office to encourage the development of the then emerging film and video industry in the State of Texas. On the tenth anniversary of the creation of the Film Commission, we find that the film industry in Texas has matured into a strong, industrious, and effective entity.

The state has earned the rightful claim to the designation "third coast" within the film industry. Not only has Texas become a prime area for "on-location" feature and television production, but it is now one of the leaders in the nation in the annual production of commercials and industrial, training, and educational films.

We are proud to present this Fourth Edition of the Texas Production Manual. This manual has been completely revised and is the most comprehensive guide to film personnel and services available in the State of Texas.

As Governor, I invite you to take advantage of Texas' many assets for your next film or video project: Texas has a wide variety of locations, trained and experienced film personnel, professional equipment and laboratories, year-round moderate weather, and an enthusiasm and hospitality that is unrivaled in the nation.

The Texas Film Commission is available to assist both in-state and out-of-state production companies, and I wholeheartedly encourage you to utilize its services and ten years of experience on your next production.

Sincerely,

W.P. Clements

William P. Clements, Jr.
Governor of Texas

Note: 1923 was not the first year a major studio came to Texas to film a theatrical motion picture, but this is the earliest date on record. There were numerous small, independent film companies situated in San Antonio and Austin making films for theatrical release at least as early as 1913.

All motion pictures made in Texas from 1923 to 1980 have not been listed because of lack of space. Placement of numbers on the map does not indicate the exact set location used by the film companies.

Source: Compiled by James R. Buchanan, historian, Texas Film Commission, from various sources.

HOW TO USE THIS DIRECTORY

The Texas Production Manual is a cross-referenced directory divided into eight sections: Who's Who, Pre-Production, Production, Post-Production, Video, Miscellaneous, Major City Information, and Addenda.

The Who's Who section contains alphabetical listings of companies and individuals in the state engaged in some aspect of motion picture or video production. These listings include brief summaries of each company and individual's skills or services, notable credits, affiliations, honors, etc. These companies and individuals are also listed in the Pre-Production, Production, Post-Production, Video, and Miscellaneous sections, in the categories which pertain to their particular skills or services.

The Pre-Production, Production, and Post-Production sections list alphabetically film-related services and skills (i.e., art directors, set construction, producers, production managers, editors, etc.). The Video section contains the services and skills related to video.

By referring first to the specific film or video categories in the Pre-Production, Production, etc., sections and then to the Who's Who section, users of this manual may determine and select the individuals or companies whose skills and experience best suits their needs.

The Miscellaneous section contains information which might be useful to either film or video producers during some phase of their production (attorneys, unions, theatre groups, etc.).

The Major City Information section provides detailed information about the climate, air charter, hotels, etc., in the major cities of Texas. Maps of the state are also included in this section.

The Addenda contains information about state laws which affect the filmmaker.

ABILENE

Abilene, the county seat of Taylor County in West Texas, was established in 1881 by the Texas and Pacific Railroad and by cattlemen of West Texas. Named for Abilene, Kansas, it quickly became a major sheep and wool-producing area with diversified farming. Today the city of 131,000 is a center for the petroleum operations of the area.

There are three colleges in Abilene: Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene Christian College, and McMurry College.

Present-day Abilene still reflects images of its Old West heritage. It is the home of the West Texas Fair, which is held for six days in September and features exhibits and amusements depicting the early days of Abilene. The Lone Star Circuit Final Rodeo is presented each November and serves as an exhibition for the top 15 Texas cowboys. Old Abilene Town, a major tourist attraction in the area, is a Western-type amusement park representing early Abilene and West frontier days through pioneer store replicas.

For recreation, eleven spacious parks and Lakes Kirby and Lytle within the city offer fishing, playground, and picnic sites. Abilene's Nelson Park Zoo is one of the five largest zoos in the state.

THE CLIMATE OF ABILENE

Abilene is located in the extreme western part of north central Texas, at an elevation of about 1750 feet. The topography of the area is rolling plains, treeless except for mesquite, and broken by low hills to the south and west. The surface rises gently to the south and east. The agriculture of the region consists mainly of cattle raising, with some dry-land cotton and feed crops.

Abilene lies roughly on the boundary between the humid climate of east Texas and the semi-arid climate to the west and north. The normal annual rainfall is near 23 inches. The rainfall pattern is typical of the Great Plains with maxima in spring, during April, May and June, and in fall during September and October. A large part of the rainfall is the result of thunderstorm activity, and wide variations occur from year to year. The range in precipitation has been from 9.78 inches in 1956 to 48.77 inches at the City Office in 1941.

The wide range between maximum and minimum temperatures characteristic of the Great Plains extends into the Abilene area. Periods of very cold weather are short, however, so that even in January fair, mild weather is frequent. High daytime temperatures prevail for a long period in summer but are broken by thunderstorm activity on an average of five times a month. The Abilene area has an average of around 40 days a year with thunderstorms, but severe storms and tornadoes are infrequent. Rapid cooling occurs after nightfall, however, and most nights are pleasant, with minimum temperatures in the upper 60's or low 70's throughout the summer.

Rapid temperature changes occur in the winter as cold dry polar air replaces warm moist tropical air over the area. The temperature sometimes falls as much as 20 to 30 degrees in an hour. A strong outbreak of polar air in January 1947, brought an extreme minimum temperature of −9 degrees to Abilene. At the other extreme 111 degrees was recorded in August 1943 at the City Office.

The high temperatures of summer are usually associated with fair skies, southwesterly winds and dry air. The low humidity, however, is conducive to personal comfort because of rapid evaporation, which has a cooling effect.

The region receives an average of near 80 percent of the possible sunshine in the summer, and about 70 percent for the year. The prevailing wind direction is southerly, and winds are frequently high and persistent for several days from this direction. The strongest winds are from a northerly direction and result from the passage of cold fronts or "northers." Dusty conditions are infrequent and occur only with northwest winds. The frequency and intensity of dust storms are dependent mainly on soil conditions in the Texas Panhandle, Oklahoma and Kansas.

ALPINE

Alpine, Texas, has the distinction of being the county seat of the 5,935 square miles of mountainous area which constitute Brewster County, the largest county in the State of Texas. (As comparison, this single county is equivalent in size to the States of Connecticut and Rhode Island combined.) It occupies an enviable geographical position in the spectacular Davis Mountains of West Texas, which offer a majestic combination of desert and mountain landscapes.

Only 80 scenic miles north of Big Bend National Park, the Alpine area is a gateway to many historical points of interest (including mining ghost towns, trading posts, and Old Fort Davis), McDonald Observatory, and of course, some of the state's most awe-inspiring scenery. The area is also a logical starting point for trips to Big Bend, Terlingua, Presidio, the impressive Camino Del Rio along the Rio Grande, and Mexico.

Principal industries of Alpine are agriculture (especially cattle and sheep raising), education and research, tourism, and mining.

Access to Alpine is available by way of Amtrak railroad, State Highways 67, 90, and 118, two bus lines, and charter flights to Alpine's municipal airport. The nearest commercial airport with scheduled airline service is the Midland/Odessa Regional Airport, about 150 miles northeast of Alpine.

THE CLIMATE OF ALPINE

Climate and location of Alpine have made it a popular vacation city. Visitors may enjoy mountain climbing, horseback riding, hiking, golf, swimming, camping and rock collecting. There are many spectacular drives in the surrounding mountains. In season, hunters take mule deer, pronghorn antelope and upland game birds. Alpine is a gateway to Big Bend National Park which lies approximately 80 miles to the south via State Highway 118. Sul Ross State College is located at Alpine.

ALPINE

Brewster County, largest in Texas, is located in the Big Bend of the Rio Grande. Rugged, spectacular mountains rise to 7835 feet. Ninety-seven percent of agricultural income is from livestock. There is a limited mineral output, chiefly clays. Farming operators produce feed grains, fruits and nuts.

Alpine, as the name suggests, has a mountain type climate. More specifically, it may be described as a cool-temperate, humid climate with warm summers. Fifty-one percent of the mean annual total precipitation falls during the three summer months. Mean annual rainfall is almost double the normal rainfall in the area west of the mountains. Winters are dry, but more humid than the surrounding lowlands.

Snow falls occasionally during the winter months, but most often it is light and remains on the ground a short time. The mean monthly snowfall data are biased by rare exceptionally heavy snows so that this statistic is a poor estimate of expected snowfall. Sometimes the total snowfall for the month occurs on a single day.

Alpine is protected partly from the cold air masses that move southward across the plains in winter. Many of these turn southeastward before reaching the Alpine area. Surges of cold air from the mountain states bring rapid drops in daytime temperatures from late fall to early spring, but these cold spells are of rather short duration, rarely lasting more than 36 to 48 hours. Minimum temperatures of 32°F or below occur about 50 percent of the time in winter. The lowest temperature of record at Alpine (since 1930) is −2°F, and occurred on February 8, 1933.

The combination of low relative humidity and high elevation results in a very pleasant summer climate at Alpine. While daytime temperatures may go above 100°F occasionally, only in June is the mean daily maxima above 90°F. Radiational cooling after sundown lowers temperatures rapidly so that daily minima are in the middle and low sixties. Since 1930, the highest temperature of record is 106°F having occurred on June 17, 1932, and on July 19 and 20, 1936.

Sunshine is abundant the year round, averaging about 75 percent of the total possible. Infrequent periods of cloudy weather are confined mostly to the winter months.

Relative humidity is low, averaging about 50 percent annually. Monthly values range from 50 to 60 percent in the winter months to between 30 and 40 percent in April.

The Davis Mountains to the north of Alpine block off winds from this direction so that the prevailing direction is westerly from November through May. A southeasterly flow prevails throughout the summer and early fall months.

The growing season (freeze free period) at Alpine averages 223 days. The mean dates of the last 32°F temperature in the spring and the first in the fall are March 31 and November 9, respectively. Low temperatures are highly sensitive to topography so that significant departures from these mean values may exist within the Alpine area. The mean annual lake evaporation is 68 inches.

AMARILLO

Amarillo is located on the Texas High Plains and is considered to be the commercial, cultural, recreational, and medical center of the Texas Panhandle. Historically the heart of a large cattle producing area, Amarillo remains today the home of the world's largest livestock auction. It is the urban hub for the North Panhandle oil and ranching regions, and is the distribution and marketing center for portions of five states.

Amarillo is the world's largest producer of helium. Other industries in the area are concerned with petrochemical products, grain storage, processing, meat packing, clothing, feed, leather goods, and cement.

Amarillo was settled in 1887 for railroad construction workers, but flourishes today as a popular convention center with a civic orchestra, ballet, symphony, and the impressive Amarillo Art Center. It is the home of Amarillo College; West Texas State University is in nearby Canyon.

Major tourist attractions to the area include Lake Meridith, Alibates Flint Quarries National Monument, and Palo Duro Canyon State Park. Palo Duro, a 120-mile canyon with an elevation of 3,500 feet at the rim, was carved out of the tabletop expanse of the Texas High Plains by a branch of the Red River. The walls of the canyon are brilliant, multi-colored strata, and spires and pinnacles adorn the canyon floor.

Being faithful to its ranching heritage, Amarillo hosts a fat stock show the third week of each January; Will Rogers Rodeo is presented in early

July; and Tri-State Fair in September highlights the area's livestock production.

Amarillo has air rated cleanest in the nation for a city of its size. Fifty-two city parks with tennis courts, swimming pools, fishing lakes, playgrounds, amusement parks, Storyland Zoo, and golf courses further enhance the city's healthy outdoor life.

THE CLIMATE OF AMARILLO

The Amarillo area is subject to rapid and extreme temperature changes, especially during the winter months when cold fronts from the northern Rocky Mountain and Plains states sweep across the level plains at speeds up to 40 m.p.h. Temperature drops of from 50 to 60 degrees within a 12-hour period are not uncommon in association with these fronts, and 40-degree drops have occurred within a few minutes. Normally the coldest period occurs in mid-January. However, the record minimum temperature, −16 degrees, occurred February 12, 1899. Long-term records of 0 degrees or lower average less than two days per year. Normally the warmest period occurs in July, but the record maximum temperature of 108 degrees occurred June 24, 1953. Temperatures 100 degrees or higher average three days per year and are slightly more frequent in July than June or August.

The nearness to the paths of moving pressure systems tend to cause strong winds, with March and April having the strongest. The fastest winds recorded have been in connection with thunderstorms. A wind of 84 m.p.h. was recorded May 15, 1949, when a tornado moving northeastward passed about a mile west of the station. The wind is below 15 m.p.h. 63 percent of the time.

Humidity averages rather low, occasionally dropping below 20 percent in the spring. Low humidity moderates the effect of high summer afternoon temperatures, permits evaporative cooling systems to be very effective, and makes for pleasant evenings and nights.

Abundant sunshine and adequate growing season permit a broad variety of agriculture and gardening. The average freeze-free period (above 32 degrees) is 202 days, but has ranged from 157 days in 1976 to 243 days in 1963. The latest spring freeze has ranged from March 14, 1963, to May 7, 1915, and 1917, with April 16 as the median date. The earliest autumn freeze has ranged from September 25, 1926, to November 22, 1965, with October 31 the median date.

Severe local storms are infrequent, though a few thunderstorms, with damaging hail, lightning, and wind in a very localized area occur most years, usually in spring and summer. These storms are often accompanied by very heavy rain, which produces local flooding, particularly of roads and streets. Tornadoes are rare; one of record moved through the city of Amarillo late Sunday afternoon, May 15, 1949, causing six deaths and 87 injuries, with damage estimated at $4.8 million.

Departures from normal precipitation are wide, with yearly totals ranging from 9.56 inches in 1970 to 39.75 inches in 1923. A period of five consecutive years, 1952–56, with significantly below normal rainfall, resulted in the most severe drought of record. Three-fourths of the total annual precipitation falls April through September, occurring from thunderstorm activity. The average frequency of precipitation amounts include annually: eleven days .50 inch or more, four days 1.00 inch or more, and one day 2.00 inches or more. An even snow cover is very unusual because of high winds, but winter snowfall averages near 14 inches ranging from 0.1 inch in 1949–50 up to 48.7 in 1918–19. Snow usually melts within a few days after it falls. Heavier snowfalls of 10 inches or more, usually with near blizzard conditions, have occurred 20 times in 80 years, mostly over a two- to three-day period. The heaviest, 20.6 inches, occurred March 25–26, 1934, in 23 hours, but much of it melted as it fell, and the greatest depth on the ground reached only 4.5 inches. The record greatest snow depth on the ground was 16.5 inches February 26, 1903, when 17.5 inches fell in 49 hours. The most damaging blizzard occurred March 23–25, 1957, when 11.1 inches of snow fell, reached a depth of 10 inches, and northerly winds averaging 40 m.p.h for 24 hours with gusts over 50 m.p.h. produced severe drifting.

AUSTIN

Amid the rolling hills of central Texas, Austin serves as the seat of state government and education. Nearby lakes and rivers offer abundant water sports and recreation. It is the home of numerous colleges, libraries, museums, art galleries, clubs, restaurants and parks.

The city, originally named Waterloo, was chosen as the permanent site for the State Capitol in a state election in 1850. Today, 46 acres in the heart of the city are devoted to the State Capitol Complex. Also located in Austin is the Governor's Mansion and the French Legation. The State Capital draws many visitors each year, not only as the governmental center of the state, but also because of the large number of museums and libraries located here, including the Lyndon B. Johnson Library, the Texas State Library, the Texas Memorial Museum, and the Elisabeth Ney Museum. The Laguna Gloria Art Gallery, the Michner Galleries and The University of Texas Art Museum bring artwork and exhibits to Austin.

As an educational center, Austin contains many institutions of higher learning, including the Austin Community College, Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Concordia Lutheran College, Huston-Tillotson College, St. Edward's University and the University of Texas.

Austin has an extensive parks system with eight major park areas of more than 5,600 acres. There are also several municipal golf courses and athletic fields. For aquatic recreation, many like to take a dip in the icy waters of Barton Springs located in Zilker Park, or enjoy one of the other twenty or so swimming pools in Austin. Close to Austin is Lake Travis with its marinas and swimming areas.

Many annual events bring Austinites out in droves. The Aqua Fest, held in August is one of the largest. It is punctuated with parades, pageants, booths, and water contests, and is held on the shores of Town Lake. There is also a lighted nocturnal water parade and fireworks extravaganza in this ten day festival.

Austin is a city of government, learning, and recreation. Its skyline is distinguished by the Capitol dome and the University of Texas Tower.

THE CLIMATE OF AUSTIN

Austin, capital of Texas, is located on the Colorado River where the stream crosses the Balcones Escarpment separating the Texas Hill Country from the Blackland Prairies to the east. Elevations within the City vary from 400 feet to 900 feet above sea level. Native trees include cedar, oak, walnut, mesquite, and pecan.

The climate of Austin is humid subtropical with hot summers. Winters are mild, with below freezing temperatures occurring on an average of less than 25 days each year. Rather strong northerly winds, accompanied by sharp drops in temperature, occasionally occur during the winter months in connection with cold fronts, but cold spells are usually of short duration, rarely lasting more than two days. Daytime temperatures in summer are hot, but summer nights are usually pleasant with average daily minima in the low seventies.

Precipitation is fairly evenly distributed throughout the year, with heaviest amounts occurring in late spring. A secondary rainfall peak occurs in September. Precipitation from April through September usually results from thundershowers, with fairly large amounts falling within short periods of time. While thunderstorms and heavy rains have occurred in all months of the year most of the winter precipitation occurs as light rain. Snow is insignificant as a source of moisture, and usually melts as rapidly as it falls. The city may experience several seasons in succession with no measurable snowfall.

Prevailing winds are southerly throughout the year. Northerly winds accompanying the colder air masses in winter soon shift to southerly as these air masses move out over the Gulf of Mexico.

The average length of the warm season (freeze-free period) is 270 days. Based on data from 1943–1961, the average date of the last occurrence of 32°F. in spring is March 3; the average date of the fall occurrence of 32°F. is November 28. Previous records show that 32°F. or below has occurred as late as April 13 (1940), and as early as October 26 (1924).

Destructive winds and damaging hailstorms are infrequent. On rare occasions, dissipating tropical storms affect the city with strong winds and heavy rains.

NORMALS - Based on record for the 1941-1970 period.
DATE OF AN EXTREME - The most recent in cases of multiple occurrence.
PREVAILING WIND DIRECTION - Record through 1963.
WIND DIRECTION - Numerals indicate tens of degrees clockwise from true north. 00 indicates calm.
FASTEST MILE WIND - Speed is fastest observed 1-minute value when the direction is in tens of degrees.

BEAUMONT

Beaumont, a city of 126,000, is on the Neches River near both the Gulf Coast and the Texas state border with Louisiana. The site has been occupied since the early 1800's, but the bustling pace that characterizes the city dates from the Spindletop Gusher in 1901. Beaumont has shared in the advances of the petroleum field through the years, and refining, synthetics, industrial chemicals, plastics, and oil field equipment constitute a significant portion of the city's economic base.

Beaumont is home to Lamar University and features many historical buildings, over 500 acres of parks, and the Neches River for recreation. Beaumont's Gladys City–Lucas Gusher Monument is the world's first re-creation of a boom town. It contains typical clapboard buildings of the era, including an information center, post office, photography studio, broker's office, saloon, power plant, livery stable, blacksmith shop, surveyor's office, wooden oil derricks, and numerous artifacts associated with the early Texas oil industry.

The flat terrain in the area is typical of the upper Gulf Coast, allowing easy cultivation. Agriculture has been, and continues to be, another significant contributor to Beaumont's economy.

Access to the city, located 85 miles east of Houston, is provided by Interstate 10, Jefferson County and Beaumont Municipal Airports, the major bus lines, and AmTrak.

THE CLIMATE OF BEAUMONT

Beaumont is located on the flat Coastal Plain in the extreme southeast corner of Texas, on the west bank of the Neches River, in the northeast corner of Jefferson County. Beaumont is the county seat, and is the hub of a highly industrialized area. A townsite was laid out in the mid-1830's. When Anthony F. Lucas' gusher blew in on January 10, 1901, the famed Spindletop oil field was discovered, and Beaumont became a boom town overnight. Today there are more than 30 oil refineries and chemical plants in Jefferson County. The city also enjoys a healthy economy as a major port and agriculture center. The Sabine-Neches ship channel handles 60 million tons annually.

The climate of Beaumont is humid subtropical with warm summers. Average annual rainfall is 54.77 inches. Dynamically, the climate is monsoonal in nature with a reversal in the wind flow with the seasons. Prevailing winds are southerly February through August, and northerly September through January. The Gulf of Mexico source region dominates the climate of the region and accounts for the high humidity and high average rainfall. Cold air masses, greatly moderated in severity by the time they reach southeastern Texas, provide the stimulating effects of seasonal change.

Winter temperatures are exceptionally mild. In January, the coldest month, the minimum drops to 32°F or below, only about one night in four, on an average. Daily maximum temperatures average 64.3°F in the winter. The lowest temperature ever recorded at Beaumont (since 1899) is 4°F, which occurred on February 12, 1899. Cloudiness is most persistent during the winter and early spring months. Fog, most frequent in midwinter and rare in summer, usually dissipates before noon. The area receives about 47 percent of the total possible sunshine during the winter season.

Summers are warm and humid. Daytime temperature maxima are moderated by the prevailing offshore winds. Refrigerated air is recommended for maximum comfort indoors. The highest temperature ever recorded at Beaumont is 108°F, which occurred on July 14, 1902.

Rainfall is abundant, but considerable variation may occur from year to year. The greatest annual total of record was 95.28 inches in 1923, while the least was 25.57 inches in 1899. There is no significant seasonal bias in precipitation amounts; however, March is the driest month; July is the wettest. Since much of the precipitation is of the convective type and there is a plentiful supply of moisture, excessive rains of short duration are rather frequent. Thundershowers are most frequent during July and August. The most persistent rains are generally associated with warm fronts and stationary fronts during the colder season and with dissipating tropical cyclones during the summer and early fall. Snowfall is insignificant. No measurable amounts fell at Beaumont during the 18 year period, 1950–1967.

The growing season (freeze-free period) averages 250 days. The average date of the last freeze in the spring is March 11, while the average date of the first freeze in the fall is November 16.

Average annual relative humidity is about 91 percent at 6:00 A.M., 62 percent at noon and 73 percent at 6:00 P.M., Central Standard Time. Seasonal averages vary only slightly. The area receives about 59 percent of the total possible sunshine annually. Mean annual lake evaporation is estimated at 51 inches.

Violent winds may accompany thunderstorms or tropical cyclones, but such occurrences are infrequent.

In summary, the climate of Beaumont is humid and subtropical with abundant rainfall. It is favorable for outdoor work or recreation during all seasons.

BROWNSVILLE

Brownsville, Texas lies along the banks of the Rio Grande, just across from Mexico. The mild semi-tropical climate of the area provides for almost year-round food production and recreation. In addition, its coastal location offers camping and swimming along the beaches. Many citrus fruits and winter vegetables are grown in this area with its 341-day growing season. Other industries include fishing, shipping and the related seafood processing.

With Brownsville's close proximity both to Mexico and the scenic South Padre Island, it attracts many visitors each year. As a recreation center, Brownsville offers hunting, fishing, and water sports. Two annual events draw thousands to the city each year. Charro days, a pre-Lenten costume fiesta provides some of the excitement and beauty of the neighboring Mexican culture; Fiesta Internacional falls in September and recognizes both Mexican Independence Day—September 16—and the cotton harvest in this three day celebration.

Brownsville originated as Fort Brown in the 1840's by General Zachary Taylor to maintain the U.S.' claim to the Rio Grande as an international boundary line. Battlefields of the area show the struggles between the two nations in the past.

Brazos Island State Park and South Padre Island offer coastal activities for the beach-minded. The Gladys Porter Zoo contains rare exotic animals on display in their natural settings without cages or bars. Brownsville is the southernmost Texas city and has the cultural distinction of being between two nations.

BROWNSVILLE

THE CLIMATE OF BROWNSVILLE

Brownsville is located in the extreme southern tip of Texas. The Gulf of Mexico is about 18 miles to east, and more than half of the land toward the coast is made up of tidal marshlands, which has the effect of moving the coast about 10 miles nearer the city. The area is located on the alluvial soils of the Rio Grande.

The climate is partly man-made. The prevailing winds of the area are from the Gulf of Mexico, but do not produce a truly marine climate. The region could be classified as semi-arid due to the Gulf sufficient lift to cause condensation, and of considerable subsidence of the winds aloft due to the presence of mountains starting about 100 miles to the west. The man-made, and most important, climate of the Brownsville region is that irrigation has changed the entire lower Rio Grande Valley into a semi-tropical area. The chief agricultural products of the Valley are cotton, citrus fruits, and a wide variety of vegetables, all grown under irrigation.

The normal annual rainfall of 25.09 inches is poorly distributed, with maxima in May and June and in September. Most of the precipitation comes in the form of thunderstorm activity, and often a single thunderstorm will account for the entire month's rainfall. Some extreme falls, like the 30.57 inches in September 1886, have occurred when hurricanes were in the vicinity. However, the frequency of hurricanes in this area is very small, and the general path is a north-south one just off the coast in the Gulf.

Temperatures in summer and fall are not extremely high, but are fairly constant in the lower nineties during the daytime, and the middle seventies at night. The prevailing onshore winds from the Gulf moderate the high temperatures. The highest temperature recorded at Brownsville is 104° in September 1947.

Winter temperatures are mild, with the normal daily minimum for January, the coldest month, being 51°. Frequently an entire winter will pass without a temperature as low as the freezing point; however, damaging cold does occur. In February, 1895, freezing temperatures or below prevailed for six consecutive days, with the lowest for the period being 22°. The coldest temperature of record is 12° on February 13, 1899. Comparable cold did not occur again until February 1, 1951, when 22° was reached in connection with a 3-day cold wave. Then on January 12, 1962, a low of 19° was recorded in another 3-day cold spell. Temperatures of 12°–22° are disastrous to the local economy. Cold of this severity kills or severely damages vegetables and citrus which are the principal winter agricultural crops.

Snow seldom occurs in Brownsville—the maximum amount recorded since Weather Bureau records began being a trace. However, local newspaper records reveal that on February 14–15, 1895, 6 inches of snow blanketed the area. The same reports refer to this fall as breaking the record of 4 inches that fell in 1866.

Glaze is rare in Brownsville, but during the cold wave of January 29–February 3, 1951, ice accretion amounted to 1–1½ inches for the most severe glaze of record.

The climate of the Brownsville area is conducive to outdoor activities in all seasons, and the warm winters make the area not only a leading agricultural section, but also an attraction to tourists.

Means and extremes above are from existing and comparable exposures. Annual extremes have been exceeded at other sites in the locality as follows: Lowest temperature 12 in February 1899; maximum monthly precipitation 30.57 in September 1886; minimum monthly precipitation 0.00 in August 1920; fastest mile of wind 106 from Northwest in September 1933.

(a) Length of record, years, through the current year unless otherwise noted, based on January data.
(b) 70° and above at Alaskan stations.
* Less than one half.
T Trace.

NORMALS - Based on record for the 1941-1970 period.
DATE OF AN EXTREME - The most recent in cases of multiple occurrence.
PREVAILING WIND DIRECTION - Record through 1963.
WIND DIRECTION - Numerals indicate tens of degrees clockwise from true north. 00 indicates calm.
FASTEST MILE WIND - Speed is fastest observed 1-minute value when the direction is in tens of degrees.

BRYAN-COLLEGE STATION

Bryan–College Station is located in an area of rolling countryside 100 miles northwest of Houston which was settled by Stephen F. Austin's colonists 160 years ago. Present-day access to the area is provided by State Highways 7 and 190, major bus lines, and Easterwood Airport and Coulter Field.

The area is presently experiencing a growing population and booming economy due to increased manufacturing and agribusiness. The economy of Bryan–College Station has historically been based on dairy farming, oil, and the presence of Texas' first state-supported institutions of higher learning, Texas A&M University. The economy also encompasses the manufacture of building products, electronics, and lignite production.

Hunting, fishing, and camping are popular recreational activities in the nearby woods and waterways. Providing a contrast to this rustic charm is the Texas International Speedway, a three-mile grand prix road course which seats 26,000 and each year attracts the top names in auto racing.

CORPUS CHRISTI

Corpus Christi is a city of over 250,000 on the South Texas Coast, 135 miles southeast of San Antonio. Although a major deepwater port serving ships from every nation, the prevailing atmosphere in Corpus Christi is one of relaxation and informal fun. The city is one of Texas' most popular seacoast resorts, due to its unique combination of climate, geography, and local attitudes.

A Naval air station and Army depot are located here, along with Corpus Christi State University and Del Mar College. The economy of the area is based on chemical and petroleum processing, shipping, fishing, manufacturing, and tourism.

Providing a quiet contrast to the huge chemical complexes and highly industrialized portions of the area, are miles of deserted ocean front, major national wildlife refuges, and nearby farming and ranching.

For recreation, fishing and water sports are available in bays, the Gulf, and on lakes near the city. And Buccaneer Days presents ten days of pageantry, parades, fireworks, music festivals, and coastal-oriented sporting events each April.

With easy accessibility assured via the highways, the Corpus Christi International Airport, and the waterways, it's no surprise that the city has hosted production companies for TILT, RAGGEDY MAN, HONEYSUCKLE ROSE, and numerous commercials in recent years.

THE CLIMATE OF CORPUS CHRISTI

Corpus Christi is located on Corpus

Christi Bay, an inlet of the Gulf of Mexico, in South Texas. Although it is located on the Gulf, the climate is intermediate between the conditions in the humid subtropical region to the northeast along the Texas coast and those of the semiarid region to the west and southwest.

Normal rainfall for Corpus Christi is 28.53 inches a year. Peak rainfall months are May and September, and the winter months have the least amounts. The season of tropical storms from June to November affects the rainfall totals during this period. Large amounts of rainfall are occasionally added to the monthly totals by these disturbances. Otherwise, these months are usually dry. Several months during the years of record have had no rainfall, or only a trace. The greatest amount for the year was in 1888 with 48.16 inches, and the least amount in 1917 with 5.38 inches. Since records were begun in 1887, snow has fallen (a trace or more) on an average of about one day every two years.

There is little change in the day-to-day weather of the summer months, except for an occasional rainshower or a tropical storm in the area. Maximum temperatures range in the high eighties to low nineties, except for brief periods in the high nineties, occasioned by a shift in the wind direction from the prevailing southeast to the south and southwest. The sea breeze during the afternoon and evening moderates the heat of the summer day. Minimum temperatures are usually in the low seventies. Mornings are usually warm because of the light and variable winds until the sea breeze begins. Summertime temperatures rarely reach 100° near this bay, but reach 100° or higher about once every two years on the average in most other parts of the city, and about once a year in extreme inland areas of the City. Temperatures above 100° are frequent 30 to 60 miles to the west and southwest. The record maximum in Corpus Christi was 105°. The maximum temperatures usually occur about noon, with afternoons more pleasant than mornings in that they are usually cloudless and windy. In the summer season the region receives near 80 percent of the possible sunshine.

The fall months of September and October are essentially an extension of the summer months. November is a transition to the conditions of the coming winter months, with greater temperature extremes, stronger winds, and the first occurrences of "northers." The winter months are relatively mild, but with temperatures sufficiently low to be stimulating. Temperatures below 32° seldom occur near the bay, but about 8 occurrences of 32° or below are usual each year in inland parts of the City. January is the coldest month with a normal monthly temperature of 56.3° and a prevailing northerly wind. The most extreme occurrences of cold weather, those in which daytime maxima do not exceed 32°, on the average occur no more than about once every three to four years. The earliest recorded date of temperature reading 32° or below in the fall is November 3, and the latest date in the spring is March 20.

Relative humidity, because of the nearness of the Gulf of Mexico, is high throughout the year. However, during the afternoons the humidity usually drops to between 50 and 60 percent.

Severe tropical storms average about one every ten years. Lesser strength storms average about one every five years. The city of Corpus Christi has a feature not found in most other coastal cities. A bluff rises 30 to 40 feet above the level of the lowlands area near the bay. This serves as a natural protection from high water. Protection for the main city is now furnished by sea walls. The chief hurricane months are August and September, although tropical storms have occurred as early as June and as late as October. The majority of the storms pass either to the south or east of the city. Tornadoes are of infrequent occurrence in the area. Hail occurs about once a year.

The healthful climate, mild winters, and abundant sunshine combine to make Corpus Christi one of the major coastal resort areas of Texas.

The rainfall pattern is similar to that of the Great Plains area to the north, with maxima in the spring during April and May. Due to the relative nearness of the Gulf of Mexico, the yearly normal is higher than normals for most stations farther north. A large part of the annual precipitation results from thundershower activity, with occasional heavy falls over brief periods of time. Snow occurs only rarely and is unimportant as a source of moisture in this area.

The prevailing surface winds are southerly. Strong winds from the north occur frequently during the colder months, but they are of relatively short duration.

Normal sunshine is 66 percent of the possible.

DALLAS

Statistics play an important role in any description of Dallas, Texas. With a 1979 population of 895,000, Dallas ranks as the second largest city in Texas, the eighth largest in the United States. It is one of the nation's top three cities in numbers of conventions, trade and market shows hosted annually, and hosts more than 2,000,000 visitors each year.

Dallas is the largest banking center in the Southwest, a leader in wholesale business, the home of more insurance companies than any other city in the nation, and ranks fourth nationally in cities with "million dollar" companies. Dallas is one of the nation's top three fashion markets, and is the home of the largest wholesale merchandising mart in the world.

Dallas is a leader in the nation in the cotton market, farm implements, trade associations, and computers. There are two outstanding medical centers and 27 four-year degree-granting institutions and 20 two-year degree-granting institutions within a 100-mile radius of the city.

Access to Dallas is through the nation's largest airport, the Dallas/Fort Worth Airport, located 18 miles west of downtown Dallas, and through Dallas Love Field, located seven miles northwest of downtown. Interstates 20, 30, 35, and 45, state highways and Amtrak Railroad also converge in the city.

A major sports center, Dallas is the home of the Dallas Cowboys, the Dallas Tornados (professional soccer), the Texas Rangers (professional baseball), and a professional ice hockey team. The 65,000-seat Texas Stadium is in nearby Arlington and 72,000-seat Cotton Bowl is on the grounds of the Texas State Fair.

Of special interests to visitors are the State Fair of Texas, the nation's largest annual exposition which draws over 3,000,000 visitors each October; the Dallas Zoo; the Cotton Bowl Classic held each New Year's Day; Old City Park with restored early Texas structures; Six Flags Over Texas amusement park; International Wildlife Park, home of exotic African animals; Farmer's Market; and Reunion Square and Dallas City Hall, monuments of futureworld architecture.

Dallas now rivals Chicago as the third largest producer of commercials, industrials, and training films. It also has become a popular location for feature film and television production because of the skilled technical crews and professional equipment readily available in the vicinity. Recent projects completed in the Dallas area include THE LATHE OF HEAVEN (PBS), SKYWARD (NBC), the "Dallas" television series (CBS), CRISIS AT CENTRAL HIGH (CBS), and DEADLY BLESSING (Venus Productions).

Further enhancing Dallas' image as an important film center is the nationally-recognized USA Film Festival, held annually on the campus of Southern Methodist University, to present some of the year's best major and independently-produced feature films.

THE CLIMATE OF DALLAS

Dallas is located in North Central Texas, approximately 250 miles inland from the Gulf of Mexico. It is near the headwaters of the Trinity River, which lie in the upper margins of the Coastal Plain. The rolling hills of the Blackland Prairies range from 500–700 feet in elevation in the area, and provide rich grass and farmlands, interlaced with woodlands along the many perennial and intermittent streams.

When considering the climate of the Dallas area, one is impressed by the temperate mean conditions that prevail, and on the other hand, by the extremes that combine to produce those means. A yearly normal temperature of 65.8°, normal annual precipitation of 34.55 inches, and a mean relative humidity average 63 percent, place Dallas in the extreme north portion of the humid subtropical belt that extends northward from the Gulf of Mexico. The wide range between maximum and minimum temperatures which is characteristic of the continental region to the north, extends into the Dallas area. Periods of extreme cold that occasionally occur are short-lived, so that even in January mild weather occurs frequently. Likewise, the extremely high temperatures that sometimes occur in summer usually do not prevail for an extended period.

Dallas is located in a region where sudden changes in temperature and moisture occur in winter as cold dry polar air replaces warm moist tropical air and vice versa. During the colder season, temperature falls of 20° or more within an hour are not uncommon following the passage of a cold front, or "norther." A strong outbreak of unusually cold air in January, 1930, brought the record low temperature of −3° on the 18th. At the other extreme, a high temperature of 111° was recorded on July 25, 1954. The high temperatures of summer are associated with fair skies, southwesterly winds, and dry air, conditions which prevail during the summer in the region to the west. Records made by cooperative observers, before the establishment of a regular Weather Bureau Office in Dallas on October 15, 1913, show an extreme minimum temperature of −10° in February, 1899, and a maximum of 115° in August, 1909.

The first freeze in the fall usually occurs around November 22, but has occurred as early as October 27, and as late as December 27. The last freeze in the spring usually occurs around March 18, but has occurred as early as February 14, and as late as April 15.

The rainfall pattern is similar to that of the Great Plains area to the north, with maxima in the spring during April and May. Due to the relative nearness of the Gulf of Mexico, the yearly normal is higher than normals for most stations farther north. A large part of the annual precipitation results from thundershower activity, with occasional heavy falls over brief periods of time. Snow occurs only rarely and is unimportant as a source of moisture in this area.

The prevailing surface winds are southerly. Strong winds from the north occur frequently during the colder months, but they are of relatively short duration.

Normal sunshine is 66 percent of the possible.

EL PASO

El Paso beckons from the westernmost tip of Texas. It is a city of 500,000 proud people who feel that they have plenty to offer the film industry. Others must share this opinion, for the city has hosted companies for THE BORDER, THE BAD NEWS BEARS IN BREAKING TRAINING, WHEN YOU COMING BACK, RED RYDER?, RESURRECTION, and others.

Varied access is part of the El Paso package. Complete air service, Amtrak Railroad, major bus lines, and the state and federal highway systems insure a mode of transportation to suit any set of particulars.

Variety is the city's principal asset. The terrain runs the gamut from stark aridity to lush agricultural pursuits proximate to the Rio Grande. Don't come, however, if plenty of sunshine doesn't fit your plans, for El Paso is the nation's sunniest city, according to the National Weather Service.

The strong local economy includes mining, manufacturing, agriculture, tourism, railroads, and military installations. Cultural variety, also, is part of the city's rich heritage, and includes the best of the Western, Mexican, and Indian traditions.

THE CLIMATE OF EL PASO

The city of El Paso is located in the extreme west point of Texas at an elevation of about 3,700 feet in the business district, with the National Weather Service station located on a mesa at about 200 feet higher elevation. The climate of the region is characterized by the abundance of sunshine throughout the year, high but no extreme daytime summer temperatures, with very low humidity, scanty rainfall, and a relatively mild winter season typical of arid areas at low latitudes.

Rainfall throughout the year is light, insufficient for any growth desert vegetation, and irrigation is necessary for crops, gardens, and lawns. Dry periods of several months' duration without appreciable rainfall are not unusual. Almost half of the precipitation occurs in the three-month period, July–September, from brief, but at times heavy, thunderstorms. Small amounts of snow fall nearly every winter, but snow cover rarely amounts to more than an inch and seldom remains on the ground for more than a few hours.

Daytime summer temperatures are high, frequently above 90° and occasionally above 100°, but summer nights usually are comfortable, with minimum temperatures usually in the sixties. The highest temperature on record is 109° on June 21, 1960, and July 3, 1960. It should be noted that when temperatures are high the relative humidity is generally quite low. A 20-year tabulation of observations with temperatures above 90° shows that in April, May, and June the humidity averaged from 10 to 14 percent, while in July, August, and September it averaged 22 to 24 percent. This low humidity aids the efficiency of evaporative air coolers, which are widely used in homes and public buildings and are quite effective in cooling the air to comfortable temperatures.

Winter daytime temperatures are mild, rising to 55° to 60° on the average. At night they drop below freezing about half the time in December and January. The flat, irrigated land of the Rio Grande Valley in the vicinity of El Paso is noticeably cooler, particularly at night, than the airport or the city proper, both in summer and winter. This results in more comfortable temperatures in summer but increases the severity of freezes in winter. The cooler air in the Valley also causes marked short-period fluctuations of temperature and dewpoint at the airport with changes in wind direction, especially during the early morning hours.

The Franklin Mountains begin within the city limits and extend northward for about 16 miles; peaks of these mountains range from 4,687 to 7,152 feet above sea level. They add noticeably to the gustiness of the winds during high velocities, and cause changes in direction during periods of light winds.

Dust and sandstorms are the most unpleasant features of the weather in El Paso. While wind velocities are not excessively high, the soil surface is dry and loose and natural vegetation is sparse, so moderately strong winds raise considerable dust and sand. A tabulation of duststorms, for a period of 20 years, shows that they are most frequent in March and April, and comparatively rare in the period July through December. The highest monthly average is in March—nearly 40 hours a month with visibility reduced to 6 miles or less by dust.

Prevailing winds are from the north in winter and south in summer, with the prevailing direction for the year north by a small margin.

FORT WORTH

Fort Worth, "Where the West Begins," was established as a military camp in 1849 at the close of the Mexican War. After the Civil War, it became a major shipping and supply depot for cattlemen.

Today this city of 368,000 is one of Texas' major cities which offers, in addition to its cattle-related activities, a wide range of manufacturing industries. More than 1,100 factories within the area manufacture electronic equipment, food products, chemicals, plastics, and it is the headquarters of two major aviation plants, General Dynamics and Bell Helicopter.

The area is a leading educational center with Texas Christian University, Texas Weslayan College, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, and the Tarrant County Junior College System in Fort Worth, and The University of Texas at Arlington and Arlington Baptist College in nearby Arlington.

Culturally, Fort Worth is known for an outstanding group of museums, including the Kimbell Art Museum, Amon G. Carter Museum of Western Art, and the Fort Worth Museum of Science and History. Vast green parks and Lakes Arlington, Benbrook, Eagle Mountain, Grapevine, and Worth offer abundant opportunities for water sports and outdoor recreation. Summer musicals, winter theatre, symphony operas, and ballet are evidence of the cultural maturity of the city, while the annual Southwestern Exposition Fat Stock Show held in late January–early February, reflects back upon the city's western heritage.

The city offers a variety of natural, historical, and futuristic locations to the filmmaker: The Aquarium ranks among the top six in the nation; the Botanic Gardens, present 150,000 plants representing 2,500 species in formal and informal settings; Forest Park Zoo; Fort Worth Nature Center; and the six-acre Japanese Garden. Structurally, Fort Worth has the Tandy Center and the Fort Worth Water Gardens, which were both used in the filming of PBS' science fiction movie, THE LATHE OF HEAVEN in 1979; the Tarrant County Convention Center, which spans 14 downtown blocks; Casa Manana Theatre, under a geodesic dome; the Fort Worth Stockyards Area, with renovated western-style stores and restaurants facing traditional boardwalks; and the Log Cabin Village, with seven authentic pioneer homes built during the 1850's.

Commercial airlines provide daily national and international service to the Dallas/Fort Worth Airport. Major bus lines link with the city, state highways and Interstate Highways 35 and 20 provide access for visitors arriving by automobile.

THE CLIMATE OF FORT WORTH

Fort Worth is located in north-central Texas approximately 250 miles from the Gulf of Mexico. It is near the headwaters of the Trinity River, which lie in the upper part of the coastal plain on the Fort Worth Prairie. The rolling hills of the area range from about 600 to 800 feet in elevation. The area has rich grass and farmlands with numerous wooded areas along the many streams.

Fort Worth is in the extreme north portion of the humid subtropical region that extends northward from the Gulf of Mexico. The region is one of temperate climate, but the weather can be extreme. The periods of occasionally extreme cold are short, so that even in January fair mild weather often occurs. Likewise, extremely high temperatures in summer rarely prevail for an extended period.

Fort Worth is located in a region where sudden changes in temperature and moisture occur. The highest temperatures of summer are generally associated with fair skies, westerly winds, and dry air that is located immediately to the west in this season. During the hot periods both evaporative air coolers and refrigerated air conditioners are used to reduce inside temperatures to comfortable levels. There are only a few nights each summer when the minimum temperature is above 80°. Hot periods in summer are often broken for three-to-five-day periods by thunderstorm activity.

During the winter, sudden changes in temperature occur with the passage of polar air masses from the north. On the whole, winters are relatively mild, but "northers" occur on an average of three times a month, bringing below-freezing temperatures for two-to-three-day periods. Days with low readings of 20° or lower occur six times a year on the average.

Rainfall occurs more frequently during the night, and rain periods usually last for only one or two days, followed by several days of fair weather. The greatest amounts of rain occur during the months of April, May, June, September, and October. Thunderstorms occur throughout the year, but are most frequent in the spring. Hail falls on an average of two to three days a year, and ordinarily with very slight and scattered damage. Windstorms occurring during thunderstorm activity are rarely destructive. Snowfall is unimportant as a source of moisture, a measurable fall occurring on an average of only once a year.

Fort Worth has a relatively long period between the last 32° temperature or below in the spring and the first in the fall, averaging 249 days. Since 1940 the longest has been 290 days in 1946 and 1953, and the shortest was 196 days in 1957. In the spring the average date of the last temperature of 32° or below is March 16, with February 14, 1946, the earliest occurrence and April 13, 1957, the latest for the period 1940–1964. In the fall the first temperature 32° or lower occurs on the average on November 21. The record shows the earliest occurrence of 32° in the fall as October 27, 1957. The latest during the period 1940–1964 was December 10, in 1947, 1953, and 1961.

@ For period July 1963 through the current year.
Means and extremes above are from existing and comparable exposures. Annual extremes have been exceeded at other sites in the locality as follows: Highest temperature 112 in August 1936; lowest temperature -8 in February 1899, maximum monthly precipitation 17.64 in April 1922, minimum monthly precipitation 0.00 in November 1903, maximum precipitation in 24 hours 9.57 in September 1932.

(a) Length of record, years, based on January data. Other months may be for more or fewer years if there have been breaks in the record.
(b) Climatological standard normals (1931-1960).
* Less than one half.
+ Also on earlier dates, months, or years.
T Trace, an amount too small to measure.
Below zero temperatures are preceded by a minus sign.
The prevailing direction for wind in the Normals, Means, and Extremes table is from records through 1963.
‡ ≥ 70° at Alaskan stations.

Unless otherwise indicated, dimensional units used in this bulletin are: temperature in degrees F.; precipitation, including snowfall, in inches; wind movement in miles per hour; and relative humidity in percent. Heating degree day totals are the sums of negative departures of average daily temperatures from 65° F. Cooling degree day totals are the sums of positive departures of average daily temperatures from 65° F. Sleet was included in snowfall totals beginning with July 1948. The term "Ice pellets" includes solid grains of ice (sleet) and particles consisting of snow pellets encased in a thin layer of ice. Heavy fog reduces visibility to 1/4 mile or less.

Sky cover is expressed in a range of 0 for no clouds or obscuring phenomena to 10 for complete sky cover. The number of clear days is based on average cloudiness 0-3, partly cloudy days 4-7, and cloudy days 8-10 tenths.

Solar radiation data are the averages of direct and diffuse radiation on a horizontal surface. The langley denotes one gram calorie per square centimeter.

& Figures instead of letters in a direction column indicate direction in tens of degrees from true North, i.e., 09 - East, 18 - South, 27 - West, 36 - North, and 00 - Calm. Resultant wind is the vector sum of wind directions and speeds divided by the number of observations. If figures appear in the direction column under "Fastest mile" the corresponding speeds are fastest observed 1-minute values.

GALVESTON

Galveston, an island located about 40 miles southeast of Houston, was Texas' earliest prominent city. One hundred years ago, as the state's only seaport, it was considered the "Gateway to the Southwest" and boasted the wealthiest citizens, the biggest banks, and the most important wholesale houses and manufacturing enterprises in Texas. Today, as the seat of Galveston County, it remains a major port, a tourist and convention center, and home of The University of Texas Medical Branch, the largest and oldest medical school in Texas.

Galveston today stands as a living monument to historical Texas. There still exist on the island scores of historical structures built by sea captains, merchants, businessmen, and prominent officers in the 19th Century. Among the most notable are Ashton Villa, an Italianate structure built in 1859 and reflecting the oppulence of the era in its carved mouldings and mantel work and lavish furnishings; and The Strand, once known as the "Wall Street of the Southwest," is one of the finest concentrations of the 19th Century iron-front commercial buildings in the United States.

The Bishop's Palace is probably Galveston's most celebrated landmark. Built as a private home in 1886 by Col Walter Gresham, it was purchased in 1923 for the Bishop of the Galveston–Houston Diocese. Fort Crockett, which was closed in 1947, was a primary coastal defense installation built in 1897. Although most of the fort's buildings have disappeared, massive coastal artillery bunkers still remain.

Annual events in Galveston include the Shrimp Festival and Blessing of the Fleet in late April, and the Festival on the Strand around July 4 with entertainment, arts and crafts, and historical exhibits. Galveston's bays, tributaries, and 32-miles of beaches are also popular places for fishing, surfing, boating, sailing, and other water sports. Sea-Arama Marineworld, the Gulf Coast's most famous sea life entertainment complex, is located on the island.

Access to the city is via the Galveston Causeway (Interstate 45), Bolivar Ferry, San Luis Paso Bridge, and Metro Airlines.

THE CLIMATE OF GALVESTON

The City of Galveston is located on Galveston Island off the southeast coast of Texas. The island is about 2¾ miles across at the widest point and 29 miles long. It is bounded on the southeast by the Gulf of Mexico and on the northwest by Galveston Bay, which is about 3 miles at this point. The climate of the Galveston area is predominantly marine, with periods of modified continental influence during the colder months, when cold fronts from the northwest sometimes reach the coast.

Because of its coastal location and relatively low latitude, cold fronts which do reach the area are very seldom severe and temperatures below 32 degrees are recorded on an average only 4 times a year. The record low temperature of 8 degrees occurred in February, 1899.

Normal monthly maximum temperatures range from about 60° in January to near 88° in August, while minimums range from about 49 in January to the middle and upper 70's throughout the summer season. The record high temperature is 101°, which occurred in July, 1932.

A normal rainfall of 42.40 inches, well distributed over the year, and the station location on an island, explain the high humidities which prevail throughout the year. Amounts of rainfall during the summer months may vary greatly on different parts of the island, as most of the rain in this season is from local thunderstorm activity. Hail is rare because the necessary strong vertical lifting is usually absent. There have been several instances when a monthly rainfall total amounted to only a trace, but these have been offset in the means by many monthly totals in excess of 15 inches. Winter precipitation comes mainly from frontal activity and from low stratus clouds, which produce slow, steady rains.

The island has been subject at infrequent intervals to major tropical storms of hurricane force. Three notable storms of this type occurred in 1900, 1915, and 1961 (Hurricane Carla). The first of these almost completely destroyed the city, but the building of a sea wall on the Gulf side of the island after the 1900 storm minimized the danger of direct wave and swell action associated with this type of storm.

The mild, sunny days and warm nights of the summer season have favored the development of Galveston as one of the major resort areas and tourist attractions of Texas.

HARLINGEN

Harlingen, a tropical city of 46,500 near the state's southernmost tip, profits from the bountiful year-round harvests of cotton, grain, citrus fruits, sugar cane, and winter vegetables in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. With agriculture the largest income producer in the Valley, Harlingen has become the transportation, processing, distribution, and marketing center for the farm products.

Tourism has also become a major contributor to the city's economy as more and more visitors are lured to the area by the balmy temperatures, the nearness to Mexico, and the proximity to beaches along the Gulf of Mexico.

Harlingen is the home of the Confederate Air Force Flying Museum, the world's largest (94) and most complete flying collection of U.S. and foreign World War II combat aircraft. All are in flying condition and painted in authentic combat colors and schemes. Many of these planes were used in the filming of the movies BATTLE OF BRITAIN, MIDWAY, TORA! TORA! TORA!, and the television series, "Black Sheep Squadron."

Also nearby, and of interest to filmmakers, are vast national wildlife refuges and the South Padre Island national seashore.

In the past few years, the area has hosted the production of THADDEUS ROSE AND EDDIE, BERMUDA TRIANGLE, and SHE CAME TO THE VALLEY.

Harlingen International Airport provides commercial service to points within Texas and Mexico. The city can also be reached via Highways 77 and 83 and major bus lines.

THE CLIMATE OF HARLINGEN

Harlingen, named for a city in Holland, is a marketing and distribution center in west central Cameron County. It is a water port, connected by a channel to the Gulf Intercoastal Canal. Harlingen is the cotton financing, processing and marketing center of the Lower Rio Grande Valley and a major citrus and vegetable marketing and processing center. Harlingen and the surrounding area is a year-round resort, fishing, hunting and water-sports area. Mexico, with its border towns filled with bargains in pottery and handicrafts, lies a few miles to the south, while the open water of the Gulf of Mexico is only a short distance to the east.

Harlingen has a warm temperature tropical climate with dry winters and hot humid summers. Although near the Gulf of Mexico and largely dominated by Tropical Maritime air masses from this source region, Harlingen does not possess a truly marine climate. Annual variations in temperature are more characteristic of a continental type of climate. Tropical Maritime air masses control the climate throughout the spring, summer and fall months, while in winter, the area is frequently under the influence of modified polar air masses.

Average annual rainfall is 25.85 inches. Most of the precipitation falls in the form of thundershowers, with the result that amounts are unevenly distributed. Occasional tropical cyclones in the late summer produce heavy rains and cause the monthly rainfall averages to show a September maximum. A secondary rainfall maximum occurs in late May and early June as the result of squall line thunderstorm fronts and stationary fronts during the winter, and with tropical lows during the late summer and early fall. March is usually the driest month.

The moisture-laden air from the Gulf of Mexico has a moderating effect on temperatures. In general, summer maxima are hotter and winter minima cooler as the distance from the Gulf of Mexico increases. Freezes (32°F or below) do not occur every year at Harlingen. The means dates of the last occurrence of 32°F or below in the spring, and the first occurrence of 32°F in the fall, are February 4 and December 12, respectively. These dates are adjusted to take into account those years during which no freeze occurs. The mean length of the warm season is 341 days. Severe freezes, resulting in heavy losses to citrus production, as well as to vegetables, occurred on January 29–31, 1949; January 20–February 3, 1951; and on January 9–12, 1962.

Harlingen receives approximately 50 percent of the total possible sunshine in winter, 60 percent in spring, 76 percent in summer and 65 percent in fall. Relative humidity decreases slightly from east to west as the distance from the Gulf increases. At noon, Central Standard Time, relative humidity is estimated at 68 percent in January, 60 percent in April, 53 percent in July, and 62 percent in October. In an average year, free water (lake) evaporation exceeds precipitation by 35 inches. The prevailing winds are south-easterly to south-south-easterly throughout the year except in December when north-northwesterly winds predominate.

The largest and most destructive storms affecting the Harlingen area are tropical cyclones. Those tropical cyclones with sustained wind speeds of 64 knots (74 miles per hour) or greater are known as hurricanes, and are a threat to the area in late summer and early fall, but major storms are rare. Flooding from torrential rains accompanying these tropical storms is the most likely cause of property damage. Prior to Hurricane Beulah, September 18–23, 1967, the last major hurricane to strike Cameron County directly was on September 4–5, 1933.

HOUSTON

Houston, the largest city in Texas and the fifth largest in the nation, has earned a reputation as an international center for corporate management, commerce, trade, education, and for energy, space, and medical research. It is a major world center for petroleum refining and petrochemical production, and has the nation's largest concentration of petrochemical plants. It is served by the third largest seaport in the United States and ranks second nationally in tonnage and value of foreign trade.

Houston is an expansive, ultra-modern city whose futuristic skyline reflects the recent dramatic movement of many corporate headquarters into the metropolitan area. It is located on a flat divide where pine forests meet semi-tropical coastal prairies and marshes. There are numerous bayous in the city. and bays and the Gulf and Mexico are nearby.

Among the many attractions in Houston are the Astrodome, the nation's first air-conditioned domed stadium for baseball and football, and home for the Houston Oilers football team and the National League Houston Astros; Astroworld, an amusement center; NASA's Johnson Space Center; Hermann Park Zoo, one of the most unusual zoological gardens in the United States; Jesse H. Jones Hall for the Performing Arts, one of the most modern theatres in the world occupying an entire downtown block; the Texas Medical Center, an immense complex of hospitals, medical schools, and research institutions; and Battleship Texas.

A major annual event is the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo held in late

February and early March. This extravaganza, which is kicked off with the arrival of 9,000 trail riders from Texas and Louisiana, is the largest livestock exposition in the state with championship cowboys and Hollywood entertainers in attendance.

Higher-educational institutions in the area include Rice University, the University of Houston, the University of St. Thomas, South Texas College of Law, Houston Baptist University, and Texas Southern University.

During 1979–1980, major television or feature films produced in Houston included URBAN COWBOY, MIDDLE AGE CRAZY, HOT WIRE, ONCE UPON A SPY, HELLINGER'S LAW, and LIAR'S MOON. The Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Council maintains a "Visitor and Film Development" division which acts as a liaison and location advisor in the Houston area for film company representatives.

Access to Houston is facilitated by the Houston Intercontinental Airport and Houston Hobby Airport, Interstate Highways 10 and 45, State Highways 59 and 290, major bus lines, and Amtrak railroad.

THE CLIMATE OF HOUSTON

Houston is located in the flat Coastal Plains, 50 miles from Galveston Island in the Gulf of Mexico and 25 miles from Galveston Bay. The climate is predominantly marine. The terrain includes numerous small streams and bayous which, together with the nearness to Galveston Bay, favor the development of humidity during certain months. Prevailing winds are from the southeast and south, except in January, when frequent passages of high pressure areas bring sporadic invasions of polar air and prevailing northerly winds.

Temperatures are moderated by the influence of winds from the Gulf, which results in brief, mild winters and, on the whole, relatively cool summer nights. Another effect of the nearness of the Gulf is abundant rainfall, except for several extended dry periods. Polar air penetrates the area frequently enough in the winter to provide stimulating variability in the weather.

The average number of days with minimum temperatures of 32° or lower is only about 7 per year at the city office, and about 15 at William P. Hobby Airport, which is located in southeast Houston. Most freezing temperatures last only a few hours since they are usually accompanied by clear skies. The extreme persistence of freezing temperatures was in January–February 1951, when the temperature remained 32° or below for 123 consecutive hours.

Monthly rainfall is evenly distributed throughout the year. Annual downtown rainfall has varied from 95 inches in 1979 to 17.6 inches in 1917. About 75 percent of the years have total precipitation between 30 and 60 inches. Monthly precipitation at the city office has ranged from 17.64 inches to only a trace. Since thundershowers are the main source of rainfall, precipitation may vary substantially in different sections of the city on a day-to-day basis.

Records of sky cover for daylight hours indicate about one-fourth of the days per year as clear with a maximum of clear days in October. Cloudy days are relatively frequent from the end of November to early May and partly cloudy days are the most frequent for June through September. Sunshine averaged near 60 percent of the possible amount for the year at the Federal Building for 1938–1960, ranging from 46 percent for the winter months to 69 percent for the summer. Data from the airport locations since 1961 indicates slightly higher percentages of sunshine. Snow rarely occurs; however, on February 14–15, 1895, 20.0 inches of unmelted snow was measured, but 24-hour amounts were not reported.

Heavy fog occurs on an average of 16 days a year and light fog occurs about 62 days a year in the city, but the frequency of heavy fog is considerably higher at William P. Hobby Airport on the east side where there are numerous bayous and bay proximity.

Destructive windstorms are fairly infrequent, but both thundersqualls and tropical storms occasionally pass through the area.

At the city office, the average date of the last temperature 32° or lower in spring is February 5. The average date of the first 32° temperature in fall is December 11. The average period from the last 32° temperature in spring to the first in the fall is 309 days. The latest date of 32° temperature in spring is March 27, 1955, and the earliest date in fall is October 25, 1892.

Means and extremes above are from existing and comparable exposures. Annual extremes have been exceeded at other sites in the locality as follows: Highest temperature 108 in August 1909; lowest temperature 5 in January 1940 and earlier; maximum monthly precipitation 22.31 in October 1949; minimum monthly precipitation Trace in October 1952 and May 1937; maximum precipitation in 24 hours 15.65 in August 1945; maximum monthly snowfall 4.4 in February 1960; maximum snowfall in 24 hours 4.4 in February 1960; fastest mile of wind 84 from NW in March 1926.

(a) Length of record, years, through the current year unless otherwise noted, based on January data.
(b) 70° and above at Alaskan stations.
* Less than one half.
T Trace.

NORMALS - Based on record for the 1941-1970 period.
DATE OF AN EXTREME - The most recent in cases of multiple occurrence.
PREVAILING WIND DIRECTION - Record through 1963.
WIND DIRECTION - Numerals indicate tens of degrees clockwise from true north. 00 indicates calm.
FASTEST MILE WIND - Speed is fastest observed 1-minute value when the direction is in tens of degrees.

LAREDO

Laredo serves as the major international crossing along the U.S.-Mexican border. It is a bi-lingual, bi-cultural area with population numbers estimated at 85,000. Nuevo Laredo, "New Laredo," was established across the border in 1775 making Laredo an international city. Located on the Rio Grande, Laredo is an export-import center with a base for petroleum production.

The annual Washington's Birthday celebration helps cement friendly relations between the U.S. and Mexico through a four day fiesta on both sides of the border. Parades, dances, fireworks and an impressive coronation ceremony honor George Washington as the first Western Hemisphere leader to free a New World country from European rule. On certain weekends in February, March and April, Quarter Horse and Thoroughbred races are held at L.I.F.E. Downs. In addition, the Laredo International Fair and Exposition in March can be added to the list of this city's festive events. The Exposition includes rodeos, stock shows, exhibitions, fairs and horse races.

THE CLIMATE OF ENCINAL (NEAR LAREDO)

Encinal is located on Interstate Highway 35, thirty nine miles north of Laredo. It is in the southwestern corner of La Salle County. Named for Robert Cavalier Sieur de la Salle, the county is brushy plain, broken by the Nueces and Fric Rivers and their tributaries. Elevations range from 300 to 600 feet above sea level. Soils are chocolate, dark gray and sandy loam types. Over three-fourths of the agricultural income of La Salle County is derived from cattle ranching. Grains, cotton, peanuts and vegetables are produced also. Minerals include oil and gas. Hunting and fishing furnish recreation. The markets, shops and nightclubs of Nueva Laredo, Mexico are only 40 miles away.

Encinal has a subtropical steppe climate with low summer humidity. Winter temperatures are quite mild while summer daytime temperatures are rather hot. Rainfall averages 21.16 inches annually, but totals vary considerably from month to month and from year to year. More than three-fourths of the average annual precipitation falls during the seven-month period, April through October, mostly in the form of thundershowers. Heavy downpours may occur at any time, but are most likely during the warm season. Since 1908, total annual rainfall at Encinal has varied from a maximum of 46.95 inches in 1919 to a minimum of only 6.72 inches in 1917. Thunderstorms occur on 33 days during an average year. The prevailing winds at Encinal are southeasterly throughout the year.

Winter is a dry season. Precipitation usually falls as light rain or drizzle. The morning hours are often cloudy, while the afternoons are sunny. The area receives about 53 percent of the total sunshine possible in winter. Winter temperatures are quite mild; minima of 32°F or below occur on about one night in four. Brief cold spells in winter are ushered in by strong, often dry, "northers" that may cause sudden drops in temperature. The lowest temperature of record at Encinal is 8°F and occurred on January 12 and 13, 1962. The mean relative humidity in January, measured at noon Central Standard Time, is 59 percent.

Spring is very pleasant. Weather changes occur often but temperatures are mild. Daily temperature maxima equal or exceed 90°F on four days in March in an average year. March is the driest month of the year, but rainfall increases in April and May as thunderstorm activity increases. May, in an average year, is the wettest month. Encinal receives about 61 percent of the total possible sunshine in spring. The mean relative humidity in April, at noon Central Standard Time, is 55 percent.

Summer daytime temperatures are consistently high. Afternoon maxima exceed 90°F almost every day. However, the steady southeasterly breeze and low afternoon humidity help prevent the heat from becoming oppressive. Mean relative humidity in July, measured at noon Central Standard Time, is 48 percent. Evaporative-type home air conditioners are effective for cooling about 85 percent of the time in July and August. Mid-summer is a dry period with little day-to-day variation in the weather. The highest temperature of record in Encinal is 115°F, and occurred on May 24, 1925 and again on June 11, 1942. Sunshine averages about 76 percent of the total possible.

During fall, temperatures continue warm in September with the daily maxima 90°F or above on about four out of five days. Rainfall increases in the early fall, with September usually the second wettest month in the year. Precipitation gradually decreases again as the fall season progresses. Sunshine averages about 66 percent of the total possible. In October, noon relative humidity averages 56 percent.

The mean length of the warm season (freeze free period) is 288 days. The mean dates of the last occurrence of 32°F or below in the fall are February 20 and December 6, respectively. In an average year, free water (lake) evaporation exceeds precipitation by 44 inches.

LONGVIEW

Longview in Gregg County is a city of 60,000 that lies 130 miles east of Dallas and 60 miles west of Shreveport, Louisiana. The early prosperity of the area was due to agriculture, which is still a cornerstone of the economy, but the region is best known for the Great East Texas Oil Field, discovered in the 1930's and still enjoying healthy present-day production.

Diverse manufacturing interests also contribute to the area's economy. Also appealing is the Caddo Indian Museum, which details the prehistoric and historic lives of this culture. In addition, Longview's natural setting includes rolling wooded hills dotted with flowering trees and shrubs.

Longview is accessible by Highways 80 and Interstate 20, Gregg County Airport, major bus lines, and the Shreveport Airport.

THE CLIMATE OF LONGVIEW

Longview is located in East Texas, near the eastern border of Gregg County, and just north of the Sabine River. It is the county seat. Industries at Longview include the manufacture of chemicals, plastics, machinery, beer, petroleum products, and automobile accessories. Le Tourneau College is located here. Gregg County is a small but populous county in the heart of the famed East Texas oil field. In addition to heavy oil production, the county has varied industries, commerce, and commercial lumber production. The terrain is hilly, about 47 percent timbered, and soils are mostly alluvial, clay, and sandy types.

The climate of Longview is humid subtropical with warm summers. Rainfall averages 47.44 inches annually, rather evenly distributed throughout the year. Prevailing winds are southerly or southeasterly throughout the year. Tropical maritime air masses predominate throughout the spring, summer, and fall months. Polar, and occasionally arctic, air masses move through the area frequently during winter and provide extreme variations in temperature, characteristic of a continental type of climate. The relative humidity is rather uniform throughout the year, although slightly lower during the summer than in other seasons. The mean relative humidity is about 85 percent at 6:00 a.m., and 58 percent at both noon and 6:00 p.m.

Winter temperatures are mild with only about one day during the entire season, on an average, when the daily maximum fails to rise above 32°F. Minimum temperatures are freezing, or below, about one night in two during the winter months. Sudden changes in temperature and humidity do occur in winter as cold, dry polar air replaces the warm moist tropical air from the Gulf of Mexico, and vice versa. Ordinarily, cold spells are of short duration. In a typical sequence, the weather turns cold one day, reaches the lowest temperature on the second night, then warms up again on the third day. Cloudiness is more prevalent in winter, but the area continues to receive about 50 percent of the total possible sunshine during this season. Winds accompanying a vigorous cold front may be strong northerly, but these decrease rapidly after the frontal passage. The lowest temperature on record at Longivew is −7°F, which occurred on February 12, 1899.

Summer is a rather warm season. There are few days when the maximum temperature does not reach or exceed 90°F. Refrigerated air-conditioning is recommended for maximum comfort indoors. There is little variety in the day-to-day weather pattern during July and August, the latter being the driest month of the year.

Spring and fall are the most delightful seasons. Temperatures are moderate and there are sufficient changes to make the weather stimulating.

Precipitation falls mostly as thundershowers, resulting from the interaction of cold fronts with the warm moist tropical air moving northward from the Gulf of Mexico. Rainfall amounts are heaviest in April and May. Slow, general rains are more common in winter. Snowfall averages a little more than one inch a year; however, average values are misleading. One snow of three or four inches may be followed by several years with no measurable amounts. Usually, snow melts almost as rapidly as it falls.

The warm season (freeze free period) at Longview averages 247 days. The average date of the last spring freeze is March 15, while the average date of the first fall freeze is November 16. The area receives about 65 percent of the total possible sunshine annually. The mean annual lake evaporation is estimated at 51 inches. Thunderstorms occur on 58 days during the year, on an average. Violent wind or hailstorms may accompany the thunderstorms of late spring or early summer, but these are infrequent.

LUBBOCK

Lubbock is a city of almost 200,000 on the Texas South Plains, and the site of Texas Tech University. The city contains the most-visited state park in the system, McKenzie State Park, which features Prairie Dog Town, and each year hosts the Panhandle–South Plains Fair, an event initiated in 1917.

Brisk air service, major bus lines, state roads, and Interstate 27 provide easy access to the area, which for reference, lies west-northwest of Dallas at a distance of 327 highway miles.

The flat terrain of the area makes it ideally suited to mechanized agriculture, and a significant portion of the state's production of cotton, grain sorghum, and wheat comes from the region. The local economy also reflects input from various assembly industries, manufacturers, and packaged food producers.

Lubbock has hosted production companies in the past for commercials and feature films, including McINTOSH AND T.J. (1975), and HUD (1963).

THE CLIMATE OF LUBBOCK

Lubbock is located on a plateau area of Northwestern Texas that is referred to locally as the South Plains Region. The general elevation of the area is about 3250 feet. The South Plains Region is a major part of the Llano Estacado. The latter which covers a large portion of Northwest Texas, is bounded on the east and southeast by an erosional escarpment that is usually referred to as the "Cap Rock." The Llano Estacado extends southwestward into the upper Pecos Valley and westward into eastern New Mexico.

The South Plains are predominately level, but contain numerous minor irregularities such as small playas (or clay lined depressions) and small stream valleys. During the rainy months the playas collect run-off water and form small lakes or ponds. The stream valleys drain into the major rivers of West Texas, but throughout most of the year these streams carry only very light flows.

The escarpment of "Cap Rock" is the primary terrain feature that causes a noticeable distortion of the smooth wind flow patterns across the South Plains. It causes considerable deflection of wind flow. The most noticeable influence is on southeasterly winds as they are deflected upward along the face of the escarpment.

The area is semiarid, transitional between the desert conditions on the west and the humid climates to the east and southeast. The normal annual precipitation is 18.41 inches. The greatest monthly rainfall totals occur from May through September when warm moist tropical air may be carried into the area from the Gulf of Mexico. This air mass often brings moderate to heavy afternoon and evening thunderstorms, which may be accompanied by hail. Precipitation across the area is characterized by its variability. Annual totals at Lubbock during the period of record range from as much as 40.55 inches to a low value of only 8.73 inches. The monthly precipitation extremes range from 13.93 inches to none or trace amounts in several isolated months.

Snow may occur from late October until April. Each snowfall is light and seldom remains on the ground for more than two or three days at any one period.

The normal annual temperature is 59.7°F. The warmest months are June, July and August with a normal daily maximum in July of 92.4°. The coldest months are December and January with a normal daily minimum temperature in January of 24.8°. For the nearby area the record maximum temperature is 109° and the all-time minimum temperature is minus 17°.

Maximum winds are associated primarily with intense thunderstorms and, although they are of short duration, they at times may cause significant damage to structures. Winds in excess of 25 MPH occasionally occur for periods of 12 hours or longer. These prolonged winds are generally associated with late winter and spring-time low-pressure centers. The stronger winds usually blow from a westerly direction.

These strong winds may bring widespread dust and can cause discomfort to residents for periods of several hours. The precipitation patterns of the previous few days and the agricultural practices of the area significantly affect the pattern and amount of the dust.

Overall the climate of the region is rated as pleasant. Most periods of disagreeable weather are of short duration. They generally occur from the winter months into the early summer months.

The summer heat is generally not considered oppressive, although intrusions of a tropical air mass will bring some periods of relatively high humidity. One moderating factor is a variable, but usually gentle, wind. Intrusions of dry air from the west often reduce the discomfort from the summer heat and lower minimum temperatures into the sixties.

LUFKIN

Lufkin, a bustling city of 27,000, is representative of the forestry-based industry of this area of East Texas. It is situated a few hours north of Houston, lies between two national parks, and is within easy access to nearby Lake Sam Rayburn. Lufkin enjoys a strong economy based on timber, oil, and manufacturing.

The lakes and forests of the area provide ample opportunities for recreation, but the citizens of the area make their own merriment with other events: an occasional rodeo and, of course, the annual Southern Hushpuppy Olympics.

The Lufkin area has hosted commercial production in the past, and given the natural beauty of Angelina County, the local industry, the numerous points of historical interest, and the people, this trend will undoubtedly continue.

THE CLIMATE OF LUFKIN

Lufkin, county seat of Angelina County, is in the heart of the Big Piney Woods Region of East Texas. It is between the Angelina and Davy Crockett National Forests and is about 10 miles from the Angelina River to the north and the Neches River to the south. Lufkin is a center for lumbering and the manufacture of newsprint. Its forest area is composed of 12.3 million acres, and produces 1.2 billion board feet of saw timber annually, plus a large quantity of pulp wood. Timber production includes short and long leaf pines, cypress, hickory, oak and magnolia. Lufkin is also a wholesale and retail trade center. Industries include foundries, machinery manufacturing, a new plywood mill, in addition to newsprint mills. Huge Sam Rayburn Reservoir (114,500 acres) is located about 15 miles east of Lufkin. The lake offers swimming, boating, picnicking, fishing, camping, and a variety of related outdoor activities.

The climate of Lufkin is humid subtropical with hot summers. Rainfall is abundant, averaging 44.93 inches annually. Prevailing winds are southerly March through September and northerly October through February. The Gulf of Mexico plays a dominant role in the climate of the area during the spring, summer, and fall months. In winter, the interaction of modified polar air from the north with the moist tropical air from the Gulf is frequent over this East Texas region.

Winter temperatures are mild with only about one day during each year, on an average, when the daily maximum fails to exceed 32°F. Arctic or unusually cold polar air masses that move rapidly southward into East Texas may bring sharp drops in temperature, but ordinarily, cold spells are of short duration. When these cold air masses stagnate, and are overrun by moist air from the south, several days of cold, cloudy, rainy weather follow. Cloudiness and fog are more prevalent in winter and early spring. The area receives about 50 percent of the possible sunshine during the winter season. Strong outbreaks of unusually cold air occurred in January, 1930, and again in February, 1951, establishing a record low temperature of −2°F on both January 18, 1930 and February 2, 1951.

The summer months are quite warm and humid, with the average daily maximum temperature 95.1°F in August. There is little variation in the day-to-day weather, particularly in July and August. Refrigerated air-conditioning is recommended for maximum comfort indoors. The record high temperature of 110°F occurred in August, 1909.

The spring and fall seasons are the most delightful. Temperatures are neither too hot or too cold, and the occasional cool spells are mildly stimulating.

Precipitation falls mostly as thundershowers, resulting from the interaction of cold fronts from the north with the warm moist tropical air moving northward from the Gulf of Mexico. Because of the abundant supply of moisture, excessive rains of short duration may occur during any month. Average monthly rainfall is rather heavy from November through May. The most persistent rains are generally associated with warm fronts and stationary fronts during winter.

Snowfalls are rare in Lufkin, and one may experience several winters in succession with no more than a trace (not enough to measure). On rare occasions, heavy snows may occur, such as the 8.1 inches that fell on January 30, 1949. These distort the mean monthly snowfall data and leave the impression that more snow falls each season than is actually the case. Sleet occurs more often, but in most cases is light.

The growing season (freeze free period) at Lufkin averages 244 days. The average date of the last freeze in the spring is March 14, while the average date of the first freeze in the fall is November 13.

Average annual relative humidity is about 85 percent at 6:00 A.M., 58 percent at noon, and 62 percent at 6:00 P.M. Central Standard Time. Seasonal averages vary only slightly. The area receives about 63 percent of the total possible sunshine annually. Mean annual lake evaporation is estimated at from 51 to 52 inches.

Severe wind and hailstorms may accompany the thunderstorms of late spring and early summer, but these are infrequent. Six tornadoes are known to have touched ground in Angelina County during the seven-year period 1959–1966. There were no deaths or injuries as a result of these violent storms.

In summary, the climate of Lufkin is subtropical with mild winters suitable for year-round outdoor activity. Daytime temperatures are rather hot in summer. Rainfall is abundant, producing lush growth.

MARSHALL

Marshall, located in East Texas near Caddo Lake and the Louisiana border, offers much in the way of scenic beauty and historical significance to the filmmaker: Cedar-fringed bayous, tall stately pines, quiet hues that change with the season, and a serene water world. In addition, the city boasts historical markers on over 50 of its structures, including several that have been listed in the National Register of Historical Places.

The forests, lakes, and bayous of the area have supplied settings for several motion pictures, the most recent of which include SWAMP RATS and SOUTHERN COMFORT. A backwoods village, circa 1940, which was constructed in the swamps near Marshall for these features, remains as a permanent set for future productions.

This city of 25–30,000 is situated in Harrison County about 150 miles east of Dallas and 46 miles west of Shreveport, Louisiana. Timber-related industries join with a wide range of other concerns to provide Marshall with a sound economic base.

Several airports, of varied sizes, bus lines, and the proximity of Interstate 20, provide easy access to the friendly folks who make the "City of Seven Flags" a special part of East Texas.

McALLEN

McAllen, in Hidalgo County, nestles just across the Mexican border from Reynosa. The city offers to filmmakers and other visitors a sunny climate, cooperative agreements with Reynosa for trans-border work, and 75,000 enthusiastic locals.

McAllen is in the Texas Citrus belt, in the alluvial Rio Grande Valley. The tropical weather benefits agriculture and, indeed, any venture in which time lost to inclement weather conditions may be costly. The climate also makes for a fruitful mix of lush vegetation and aridity, which provides a broad range of location possibilities in a relatively small span of miles.

McAllen is a popular tourist facility, catering to thousands of summer and winter visitors and business conventions. Annual events include the International Spring Fiesta and the International Pro-Am Golf Tournament in March, and the national Oilmen's Golf Tourney in June.

THE CLIMATE OF McALLEN

McAllen is located in south central Hidalgo County in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. The city lies on the fertile delta of the Rio Grande in the midst of an intensively cultivated citrus and vegetable growing area. It is located at the crossroads of the Lower Valley "main street," and the north-south highway from the United States to Monterrey, Mexico via way of Reynosa. Hidalgo County has the highest agriculture production of any county in Texas. The Gulf of Mexico lies approximately 70 airline miles east of McAllen, and Mexico only about 8

The climate is semi-arid with an average of 18.18 inches of rainfall annually. Most rainfall is derived from thundershower activity, which reaches a peak in late spring, and again in early fall. September and October rainfall is increased by an occasional tropical low pressure center that moves inland up the Rio Grande Valley and brings intensive rainfall for a day or two. The least rainfall occurs in early winter and early spring.

Summer temperatures are rather warm with daytime highs generally in the middle nineties. Winters are pleasantly mild, with nighttime lows usually in the low fifties. Two years out of ten, on an average, the temperature never drops as low as 32°F in the spring; and four years out of ten, the temperature does not drop as low as 32°F in the fall. The growing season (freeze free period) is exceptionally long, averaging about 325 days. The average period between 28°F freezes is 353 days. However, there have been severe cold spells that caused extensive damage to crops, fruits, and vegetables, but these are quite rare. Severe freezes occurred January 29–February 3, 1951, and again January 9–12, 1962. A low of 19°F was recorded at McAllen, February 3, 1951; and a low of 17°F was recorded January 12, 1962.

Mean relative humidity is about 70 percent annually, and varies little from month to month. Relative humidity increases eastward toward the Gulf of Mexico, and decreases westward toward Mexico and the middle Rio Grande Valley. Prevailing winds are southeasterly, off the Gulf of Mexico. Refrigerated air conditioning is recommended from about mid-April through mid-October.

McAllen is too far inland to be greatly concerned about hurricanes. These storms usually follow a north-south path just off shore, whenever they enter the West Gulf. The few that move inland over the Lower Valley or northern Mexico lose their intensity rapidly after crossing the coast line. However, excessive rainfall from such storms may cause localized flooding, if drainage is inadequate. Tornadoes or damaging hailstorms are quite rare.

The climate of McAllen and the surrounding area favors outdoor activity the year around. No measurable snow has fallen in McAllen during the 24-year period, 1942–1965. The mild winters attract a large number of tourists and retired people.

MIDLAND

Up until 1923 when vast oil reservoirs were discovered in the nearby Permian Basin, Midland, Texas, was a city of quiet agricultural interests. Today this city of 82,000 is a center for petrochemical complexes and oil and gas drilling, and the headquarters for over 700 national and regional petroleum-related businesses. Midland is also an important wholesaling, banking, transportation, medical, educational, and agricultural center, and has the highest per capita personal income of all cities in the State of Texas.

The terrain surrounding Midland is generally flat, broken only by an occasional draw. It is a semi-arid area, with the chief vegetation consisting of grafa grass, mesquite, mulberry, and pecan trees. Midland, however, is known as a city of fine recreational facilities and parks, with the most notable being Cole Park Zoo, Dennis the Menace Park, and Hogan Park. Cole Park Zoo features animals of the west Texas area, including Texas longhorn, buffalo, elk, deer, antelope, wild pigs, etc. Dennis the Menace Park is a three-acre duplicate of the original in Monterrey, California, with pastel colors and unusual areas of wading pools, walks, slides, playhouses, and fountains. Hogan Park has picnic and playground areas, and an 18-hole golf course. Fishing, boating, and water sports are available on four lakes within a two-hour drive of downtown Midland, and the unusual 4,000-acre Monahans sand dunes.

Two unique museums in Midland are the Museum of the Southwest, which houses art, history, and science exhibits of the Southwest region, and the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, which traces the history of petroleum, its formation, discovery, and production in the Permian Basin.

Midland is easily accessible by air, through the Midland/Odessa Regional Airport. It is serviced daily by Braniff, Continental, Texas International, and Southwest Airlines. Interstate Highway 20 provides easy access to the area for visitors arriving by automobile.

In recent years, Midland has been a location for two major feature presentations: HARD COUNTRY, a Marble Arch Production in the fall of 1979, and HANGAR 18, a Sunn Classic Films Production in the spring of 1980.

THE CLIMATE OF MIDLAND–ODESSA

The Midland-Odessa region is on the southern extension of the South Plains of Texas. The terrain is level with only slight occasional undulations. There is a marked downslope of about 900 feet per 100 miles to the east and southeast and upslope of about 600 feet per 100 miles to the north and west.

The climate is typical of a semi-arid region. The vegetation of the area consists mostly of native grasses, and there are very few trees in the area, mostly mesquite. There is very little farming in the immediate vicinity. The economy is based on ranching and the extensive oil fields in the area.

Droughts occur with monotonous frequency. Several years which show an excess in precipitation might be misleading, since extremely heavy downpours would show as large accumulations but the runoff would be so great and rapid that little benefit would be derived from the rainfall. If good rains occur in the spring and summer months cattle ranges are good, even though the remainder of the year may be well below normal.

Most of the annual precipitation in the area comes as a result of very violent spring and early summer thunderstorms. These are usually accompanied by winds in excess of 40 m.p.h., excessive rainfall over limited areas, and sometimes hail. Due to the flat nature of the countryside, local flooding occurs, but this is of short duration. Tornadoes are occasionally sighted, mostly aloft, but the sparsity of population in the area, with most people concentrated in cities or towns, causes very infrequent damage or injury.

There is very little precipitation in the winter and infrequent snow. Fog and drizzle due to the upslope from the southeast occur frequently during night hours, but generally clear by noon.

During the late winter and early spring months, duststorms occur very frequently. The flat plains of the area with only grass as vegetation offer little resistance to the strong winds that occur. Dust in many of these storms remains suspended in the air for several days after the storm has passed. The sky is occasionally obscured by dust but in most storms visibilities range from 1 to 3 miles.

Daytime temperatures are quite hot in the summer, but there is a large diurnal range and most nights are comfortable. The normal daily maximums in the summer months range in the low to mid-nineties, while the normal minimums range in the upper sixties. In winter the temperature range is from the upper fifties to the low and middle thirties.

The temperature usually first drops below 32° in the fall about the middle of November and the last temperature below 32° in spring comes early in April. However, below 32° temperatures have been recorded as early as October 31 and as late as April 20.

Winters are characterized by frequent cold periods followed by rapid warming. Springs have very violent thunderstorm activity, while summers are hot and dry, with numerous small convective showers. Extremely variable weather occurs during the fall. Frequent cold frontal passages are followed by chilly weather for 2 or 3 days, then rapid warming. Cloudiness is at a minimum.

The prevailing wind direction in this area is from the southeast. This, together with the upslope of the terrain from the same directions, causes frequent low cloudiness and drizzle during winter and spring months. Glaze occurs when the temperature is below freezing, but usually lasts for only a few hours. Maximum temperatures during the summer months frequently are from 2° to 6° cooler than those at places 100 miles southeast, due to the cooling effect of the upslope winds.

Very low humidities are conducive to personal comfort, because even though summer afternoon temperatures are frequently above 90°, the low humidity with resultant rapid evaporation, has a cooling effect. The climate of the area is generally quite pleasant with the most disagreeable weather concentrated in the late winter and spring months.

PORT ARTHUR

On the northwest shore of Sabine Lake, nine miles from the Gulf of Mexico, lies the city of Port Arthur. Famous for year-round fishing and oil refining, the city claims a population of well over 50,000 and an average temperature of 55 degrees in winter and 82 in the summer.

Established in 1840 as the settlement of Aurora, the city was later named for and established by Arthur E. Stilwell, promoter and president of the Kansas City Southern Railroad. He bought acreage and organized the Townsite Company. In 1901, fishing had competition as the major source of livelihood from the oil fields.

Presently nearly a million barrels of crude oil are refined in the area daily, justifying the claim, "We Oil the World." CavOILcade is an annual celebration held in October to salute the petroleum industry of the city. This three day festival includes activities such as a queen coronation, downtown street parade, musical events and competition, contests, banquets, regattas and a fishing rodeo on Pleasure Island. Around Memorial Day, the city celebrates its annual Texas-Louisiana Cajun Festival. Events include crawfish races, musical events, contests, dances, queen contest topped off with authentic Cajun cooking.

Pleasure Island, connected to Port Arthur by Gulfgate Bridge, offers a golf course, marina, boat ramps, and miles of roadside fishing levees for those interested in recreation. Rainbow Bridge is the tallest bridge in the South over a navigable stream and provides a bird's eye view of the area and its waterways.

THE CLIMATE OF PORT ARTHUR

The climate of Port Arthur is humid subtropical with warm summers. Dynamically, the climate is monsoonal in nature with a reversal in the wind flow with the seasons. Prevailing winds are southerly February through August, and northerly September through January. The Gulf of Mexico source region dominates the climate of the area, and accounts for the rather high humidity and average rainfall. Temperatures are moderated by the influence of the Gulf of Mexico, and are not as cool in winter or as warm in summer as at locations farther inland. In an average year, freezing temperatures occur only 11 days, and the duration of these low temperatures is confined usually to an hour or two just before sunrise. Severe freezing occurred in January, 1930, January, 1940, February, 1951 and February, 1962. The lowest temperature of record at Port Arthur is 11°F. and occurred January 18, 1930.

Rainfall is fairly evenly distributed throughout the year and averages 56.05 annually—near the highest average in the state. Amounts are heaviest from May through September. Because of the abundant supply of moisture available, slow moving thunderstorms, or tropical disturbances moving westward from the Gulf, may dump excessive amounts of precipitation on the area within relatively short periods. Since 1911 annual precipitation extremes have ranged from 76.54 inches in 1949 to 30.52 inches in 1924. The mean relative humidity at noon, Central Standard Time, is 70 percent in January, 65 percent in April, 65 percent in July, and 55 percent in October. Free water (lake) evaporation is 51 inches annually (less than mean rainfall). In an average year, thunderstorms occur on 62 days.

Winter temperatures are exceptionally mild. Cloudiness is most persistent during the winter and early spring months. Polar Canadian air masses bring brief periods of cool, foggy, rainy weather; however, the area receives about 50 percent of the total possible sunshine during the winter season. Snowfall is insignificant.

Spring is a most pleasant season. Temperatures are moderate and there is less cloudiness than in winter. Precipitation is mostly of the shower type.

Summers are warm and humid. Daytime temperatures are moderated by the prevailing offshore winds. Refrigerated air conditioning is recommended for maximum comfort indoors or while traveling.

Fall is perhaps the most pleasant season on the Texas Gulf Coast. Temperatures are moderate. Modified Polar air masses push across the coast and provide days of mild, dry, sunny weather. The prevailing winds are light northerly, and the air is less humid than when Tropical Maritime air is present.

Tropical storms are a threat to the Texas coast in the summer and fall, as they are to any section of the Gulf Coast, however, storms of hurricane intensity are rare, and the probability of a storm of such severity striking a particular location, within any particular year, is exceedingly small. Since hurricanes move slowly, adequate warnings are issued by the U.S. Weather Bureau well in advance of landfall.

The warm season (freeze free period) at Port Arthur averages 250 days. The average dates of the last occurrence of 32°F or below in the spring, and the first occurrence of 32°F or below in the fall, are March 11 and November 16, respectively.

SAN ANGELO

San Angelo, a growing city of 75,000 in Tom Green County, dates from the late 1860's. Fort Concho served as the focal point of the town's development and stands today as the most well-preserved fort in the state.

Air service, major bus lines, and Highways 67, 87, and 277 provide access to the "Wool Capitol of the World," which sits atop the rolling plains of Texas.

Aside from sheep and wool production, San Angelo's major crops are cotton grain sorgum and oil. Oil field-related businesses figure prominently in the area's economy, along with diverse manufacturing concerns.

Annual events include the Lamblast, the San Angelo Rodeo, Fiesta Del Concho, and the Roping Fiesta, among others. Seasonal hunting and plentiful fishing on three lakes round out local recreational activities.

THE CLIMATE OF SAN ANGELO

San Angelo is located near the center of Texas at the northern edge of the Edwards Plateau. The ground elevation in the vicinity ranges from about 1,700–2,700 feet above sea level, with the surface varying from level and slightly rolling to broken. The climate is generally classified as "semiarid" or "steppe," but actually borders onto the "humid temperate" in some of its characteristics. Originally the land was heavily covered with grass as is typical of steppe climates, but chronic overgrazing has severely damaged the grass with consequent heavy development of vegetative cover with protective characteristics such as cacti and thorny brush. Warm, dry weather predominates, although changes may be rapid and frequent with the passage of "cold fronts" or "northers," and abrupt large temperature drops are common, especially in winter.

The average number of days between the last freezing temperature in spring to the first similar temperature in the fall is 232, while the average date of these phenomena are March 24 and November 13, respectively. Freezing temperatures have occurred as late as April 18 and as early as October 16.

The rainfall is typical of the Plains, with most precipitation occurring in the form of convective showers and thunderstorms that show considerable variation both in amount of water received and in the areas covered. During 1936 the total precipitation was 40.40 inches, of which 27.65 inches fell in September with the inland passage of a tropical storm from southern Texas. Much more precipitation occurred in this one month than usually occurs in a normal year. Years of heavy precipitation usually have been when a tropical hurricane moved inland in south Texas and passed over the San Angelo area. The driest year of record was 1956, with only 7.41 inches, of which 2.14 fell in October, and over a period of half a century, there have been 30 months with no measurable precipitation at all. Snowfall averages near 3 inches a year but seldom remains on the ground for longer than a few hours at a time, or a day or two at the longest. The maximum monthly amount of 13.0 inches fell in February, 1924 and January, 1926, but 22 years out of the past half century have had only a trace or none.

For the year as a whole, relative humidity averages 73 percent in the early morning hours and 40 percent in the late afternoon, with the greatest variation in the summer months from 77 and 78 percent in the early morning to the lower thirties in the early evening. This wide variation, coupled with the annual average wind velocity of 11 m.p.h., helps to moderate what would otherwise be an extremely uncomfortable climatic characteristic. These humidities are higher than a true "semiarid" climate, and are the factor that places this area very nearly in the "humid temperate" category, even though precipitation amounts are in keeping with a typical "semiarid" climate.

NORMALS - Based on record for the 1941-1970 period.
DATE OF AN EXTREME - The most recent in cases of multiple occurrence.
PREVAILING WIND DIRECTION - Record through 1963.
WIND DIRECTION - Numerals indicate tens of degrees clockwise from true north. 00 indicates calm.
FASTEST MILE WIND - Speed is fastest observed 1-minute value when the direction is in tens of degrees.

SAN ANGELO

SAN ANTONIO

Situated in the celebrated Texas Hill Country, San Antonio is a modern city with visible vestiges of a rich and colorful heritage. In addition to the famous Alamo Mission, there are three other missions and numerous museums and institutes in the city. The Spanish influence on the city's growth is in abundant evidence from the adobe Spanish Governor's Palace with mosaic tile and carved doors, to La Villita (the little village), which captures the charm of a genuine Mexican village of a century ago. La Villita features narrow streets, shaded patios, adobe houses, and is the site of many of San Antonio's summertime fiestas.

San Antonio attracts more in and out-of-state visitors than any other city in Texas. Many visit San Antonio for the bilingual, multi-cultural atmosphere of the tenth largest U.S. city. One of the main attractions is the scenic River Walk, which traverses downtown San Antonio and exudes an old world charm. Along the River Walk, visitors can enjoy many notable restaurants and clubs.

Other attractions include the Institute of Texan Cultures, Brackenridge Park, and HemisFair Plaza. The Institute of Texan Cultures examines the many ethnic groups and nationalities which settled in Texas and gave the state its varied ethnic flavor. Brackenridge Park spans 340 acres and includes rustic stone bridges, tree-lined walks, shimmering pools, and the Chinese Sunken Garden. HemisFair Plaza was the site of the 1968 Texas World's Fair and continues to offer entertainment and recreation with the Tower of the Americas restaurant, several museums, and theatres.

The surrounding topography of Bexar County is described as semi-tropical with rolling hills and wooded areas. The city is in close proximity to the Guadalupe River and Canyon Lake.

Despite the festive atmosphere that pervades the city, the U.S. Government has always maintained strong military posts there. From its earliest beginnings as a presidio (fort), San Antonio now contains five military complexes, making the military one of San Antonio's largest employers. Other industries include the manufacture of items ranging from beer and bread, to some vegetable farming and, of course, tourism.

A large international airport in San Antonio provides daily commercial air service to points throughout the United States and Mexico. Interstates 10 and 35, major bus lines, and Amtrak railroad also provide easy access to the city for visitors.

During 1980, San Antonio and surrounding area served as the principal location for THE BIG BRAWL, 300 MILES FOR STEPHANIE (NBC), and a national Michelob commercial.

Although San Antonio is a teaming metropolitan area, it has grown slowly over the decades compared to other large cities in Texas and the result is a strong sense of history and culture in the Texas "cradle of liberty."

THE CLIMATE OF SAN ANTONIO

The City of San Antonio is located in the south-central portion of Texas. Northwest of the city the terrain slopes upward to the Edwards Plateau and to the southeast it slopes downward to the Gulf Coastal Plains. Soils are blackland clay and silty loam on the Plains and thin limestone soils on the Edwards Plateau.

The location of San Antonio on the edge of the Gulf Coastal Plains results in a modified sub-tropical climate, predominantly continental during the winter months and marine during the summer months. Normal mean temperatures range from 50.7° in January to a high of 84.7° in July. While the summer is hot, with daily maximum temperatures above 90° over 80 percent of the time, extremely high temperatures are rare, the highest on record being 107 degrees. Mild weather prevails during much of the winter months, with below-freezing temperatures occurring on an average of about 20 days each year.

San Antonio is situated between a semiarid area to the west and the coastal area of heavy precipitation to the southeast. The normal annual rainfall of 27.54 Inches is sufficient for the normal production of most crops. Precipitation is fairly well distributed throughout the year with heaviest amounts during May in the spring and September in the fall. Precipitation from April through September usually occurs with thunderstorms, with fairly large amounts falling in short periods of time, while most of the winter precipitation occurs as light rain or drizzle. Thunderstorms and heavy rains have occurred in all months of the year. Hail of damaging intensity seldom occurs but light hail is frequent in connection with the springtime thunderstorms. Measurable snow occurs only once in 3 or 4 years with the greatest annual amount 7.4 inches in 1926.

Northerly winds prevail during most of the winter, while southeasterly winds from the Gulf of Mexico prevail during the summertime and may be experienced for long periods during the winter. Rather strong northerly winds occasionally occur during the winter months in connection with "northers." No tornadoes have been experienced in the immediate area.

Being located only 140 miles from the Gulf of Mexico, tropical storms occasionally affect the city with strong winds and heavy rains. The fastest mile of wind recorded, 74 m.p.h., occurred as a tropical storm moved inland east of the city in August, 1942.

Relative humidity averages about 80 percent during the early morning hours most of the year, dropping to near 50 percent in the late afternoon.

San Antonio, popularly known as the place "where the sunshine spends the winter," has about 50 percent of the possible amount of sunshine during the winter months and more than 70 percent during the summer months. Skies are clear more than 35 percent of the time and cloudy about 30 percent. Air carried over San Antonio by southeasterly winds is lifted orographically, causing low stratus clouds to develop frequently during the later part of the night. These clouds usually dissipate before noon with clear skies prevailing a high percentage of the time during the afternoon.

TEXARKANA

Visitors to the annual Four States Rodeo in Texarkana come away captivated by this bustling city of 59,000 on the Red River in East Texas. Several corporate citizens, in conjunction with productive farms and orchards, supply economic stability. Lake Wright Patman and Millwood Reservoir tempt those who enjoy water sports.

Municipal Airport, major bus lines, and nearby Interstate 30 offer access options that should suit any project. In addition, Texarkana is the location of such diverse entities as the Red River Army Depot, a 50-square mile munitions and maintenance facility for the Armed Forces, and an impressive array of Indian burial mounds, remnants of the Caddo culture.

This city in two states has hosted feature filming before, and stands ready to add to its list of credits.

THE CLIMATE OF LAKE TEXARKANA

Lake Texarkana, one of the largest lakes in Texas, is a Corps of Engineers flood-control reservoir of approximately 20,300 acres located in the northeastern corner of the state, 10 miles southwest of Texarkana. The lake is constructed on, and impounds the waters of Sulphur River along the border of Bowie and Cass counties. It is the place to go for fishing, water skiing, swimming and hunting. The lake is surrounded by wooded picnic and camping areas, and commercial concessions have provisions for fishing and other water sports.

Bowie County on the north is hilly and timbered with commercial stands of pine and hardwoods. Upland soils are clay and sandy types, bottom lands are rich, alluvial soils. Bowie County is among the state's major livestock producers with extensive production of beef cattle, dairy products and poultry, and some sheep. Manufacturing is the leading source of employment. The Red River Arsenal occupies a 50-square-mile area just southeast of Boston. Adjacent to the arsenal, and covering a large area near Texarkana, is the Lone Star Ordnance Plant.

Cass County, lying to the south, is also rolling to hilly terrain, and 71 percent forested. Sawmills produce pine and hardwood railroad ties. Other products are gas, oil, iron ore, and lignite. Two-thirds of the agricultural income is from livestock and poultry. Other agricultural income is from diversified field crops, truck gardens and orchards. Many residents work in the steel mill, chemical plant and arsenal in neighboring counties.

The climate of the area surrounding Lake Texarkana is humid subtropical with warm summers. Abundant rainfall, averaging 46.50 inches annually, is evenly distributed throughout the year. Prevailing winds are northeasterly during the fall and winter months and south-southwesterly during the spring and summer seasons. Hourly wind speeds are among the lowest in the state, averaging about 7.6 miles per hour annually. The Gulf of Mexico plays a dominant role in the climate of the area during the spring and summer months, while modified polar air masses contribute significantly to the fall and winter climate.

Winter temperatures are mild with only about two days during each year, on an average, when the daily maximum fails to go above freezing. Infrequent arctic air masses moving southward out of Canada bring sharp drops in temperature, but usually, cold spells are of short duration. In a typical sequence, the weather will turn cold one day, reach the lowest temperature on the second night, then warm up again on the third day. Cloudiness is most prevalent in winter, but the area continues to receive about 50 percent of the total possible sunshine during this season. Winds associated with a vigorous cold front may be strong northerly, but usually decrease rapidly soon after the frontal passage.

Summer temperatures are not usually excessive although light or nearly calm winds during the later afternoon and night cause high temperatures to be oppressive than they would be at higher wind speeds. Refrigerated air conditioning is recommended for maximum comfort indoors.

The spring and fall are delightful seasons of the year with warm days and cool nights.

Thundershowers are frequent from March through August. Slow, general rains are more common in winter. Peak rainfall occurs in April and May; August and October are the driest months. The wettest year on record was 1957, when the gauge at Texarkana Dam measured a total of 68.75 inches. Only 31.41 inches fell in 1956, the driest year on record at the dam site.

Snowfall is insignificant as a source of moisture in the Lake Texarkana area. Average snowfall data are biased by rare exceptionally heavy snows such as the 7.0 inches that fell on January 9, 1962. This single snowfall, the heaviest in 20 years, was the only measurable amount to fall at Lake Texarkana within the ten-year period 1957–1966.

Average annual relative humidity is 86 percent at 6:00 A.M.; 60 percent at noon; and 61 percent at 6:00 P.M. Central Standard Time. The area receives about 68 percent of the total possible sunshine annually. Mean annual lake evaporation is 49 inches.

The average date of the last spring freeze in the vicinity of Lake Texarkana is March 21, while the average date of the first fall freeze is November 11. The growing season (freeze free period) averages 235 days.

In summary, the mild winters and relatively low wind speeds during all seasons are favorable for year-round recreational activities at Lake Texarkana.

TYLER

Few locations can rival Tyler for its combination of beauty and industry. Tyler's 73,000 residents draw their livelihood from the rich forests of East Texas, from petroleum, and from manufacturing. Air service from Houston and Dallas, proximity to Interstate 20, and bus service from two lines insure accessibility.

Abundant rainfall contributes to Tyler's principal claim to fame, its rose industry, which produces 15 million bushes annually. Tyler, however, does not export all of this beauty. The annual Texas Rose Festival and the Spring Flower and Azalea Trail provide visitors with an opportunity to tour the city's stately neighborhoods.

Tyler has been the setting for commercials and network specials, and will continue to be as long as there is a market for forests, lakes, flowers, and industrious folks.

THE CLIMATE OF TYLER

Tyler, the "City of Roses," and the county seat of Smith County, is located near the western edge of the East Texas pine belt. It is the commercial center for a large urbanized area with a diversified economy based in oil, farming, nursery business, wholesaling, and retailing. Nurseries in the area produce 20,000,000 rose bushes yearly. The surrounding area consists of forested hills, valleys, and many running streams. Smith county is bounded on the north by the Sabine River, and on the west by the Neches River. Lake Tyler and Mud Creek Reservoir are favorite recreational attractions.

The climate is humid subtropical, with hot summers. Rainfall averages 43.35 inches annually, evenly distributed throughout the year. Prevailing winds are from the south-southeast; consequently, the Gulf of Mexico plays a dominant role in determining the weather in the region.

The summer months are quite warm, with the average daily maximum temperature 94.2°F in August. Winter temperatures are mild with only about two days during each year, on an average, when the daily maximum fails to go above freezing. The occasional cold spells are of short duration, usually turning cold one day, reaching the lowest temperature on the second night, then warming up again on the third day. Sub-tropical vegetation and flowers such as the magnolia, camellia, gardenia and rose fare well in the winter. Roses often bloom into December and begin blooming again by late March. Maximum daily temperatures average 56.0°F in January, the coldest month.

Snowfall averages about two inches a year; however, average values are misleading. One snow of four or five inches may be followed by several years with no measurable amounts. Usually, snow melts almost as rapidly as it falls, and is an unimportant source of moisture. More troublesome than snowfall are the occasional ice and sleet storms which do considerable damage to trees, shrubs, and utility lines, as well as making travel difficult. They occur during brief periods in the winter months.

The spring and fall seasons are the most delightful. Temperatures are neither too hot or too cold, and there are sufficient changes to make the weather interesting.

The growing season (freeze free period) at Tyler averages 259 days. The average date of the last spring freeze is March 7, while the average date of the first fall freeze is November 21.

Average annual relative humidity is 80–85 percent at 6:00 A.M. and 55–60 percent at 6:00 P.M. Central Standard Time. Seasonal averages vary only slightly. The area receives about 65 percent of the total possible sunshine annually. January is the cloudiest month. Mean annual lake evaporation is estimated at 52 to 54 inches.

UVALDE

Uvalde, a city of 14,000 situated 85 miles west of San Antonio on Highway 90, has hosted feature film productions at least three times in the past. Given the scenic and historical riches to be found in the area, future productions are inevitable.

Geographically, Uvalde County sweeps from the Edwards Plateau to the Rio Grande Plain. The Edwards Aquifer underlies the region, supplying abundant water for the city's famous trees, and a continuous supply for the high-yield agricultural and ranching concerns in the vicinity.

Uvalde is quite proud of its past, which reflects the influence of the Spanish and of course, the American West. During the year numerous local activities hearken back to those adventurous times, including rodeos, reunions, tribal dances by the native Sahawe Dancers, festivals, water sports, barbeques, chili contests, and the not so historical, but bodaciously enjoyable tractor pulls.

Consider Uvalde: Home of stately trees, plentiful waters, history, and industriousness. They call it the Frontier of the Great American West. No brag, just fact.

VICTORIA

Victoria, in Victoria County, is a prosperous city of 56,000 situated 123 miles southwest of Houston and minutes away from the Lower Gulf Coast.

The area enjoys a strong economy based on oil, farming and ranching, tourism, precision manufacturing, and many other diverse pursuits.

The people of Victoria are keenly aware of the rich history of the area, which has been under six flags and has prospered continually.

The city is famous for its numerous historical homes and buildings. The Texas Zoo houses native Texas animals, and the beautiful Guadalupe River winds through Riverside Park.

State Highways 59, 77, and 87 converge in Victoria, and the city is served by the Victoria Regional Airport.

THE CLIMATE OF VICTORIA

The city of Victoria is located in the southcentral Texas Coastal Plain. The climate is classified as humid subtropical and the records show a long, hot summer with about 100 days of maximum temperatures 90° or above; however, pleasant sea breezes from the nearby Gulf of Mexico make the high temperatures bearable.

Spring is characterized by mild days, brisk winds, and frequent showers. Strong southeast winds begin in March, diminish in April and May, and become pleasant sea breezes in the first half of June. Shower activity increases through March and April, reaching a peak in

May. Considerable cloudiness is the rule, with almost 50 percent of the days in the spring having overcast or nearly overcast skies.

The sea breeze diminishes during the summer, and at times fails altogether, and some hot nights are experienced in late June, July, and early August. High summer humidity gives way to clear, drier air in late August. Nighttime radiation increases and nighttime temperatures drop to pleasant levels. Afternoon showers continue, and lawns and fields remain green.

The first "norther" usually arrives near the beginning of fall, in late September. October and November are ideal fall months with long periods of clear days with mild temperatures and cool nights. The amount of rainfall decreases.

The winter season alternates between clear, cold, dry air and cloudy, mild, drizzly weather as cold fronts move down from the north and are then pushed back by the warm air lying over the Gulf of Mexico. The temperature drops below 32° on an average of about a dozen mornings per year, but it is very rare that below-freezing temperatures last into the afternoon.

WACO

Waco is a city of over 100,000 that is situated on the Brazos River in the north-central portion of the state. The area's first settlers date from 1849, a few years after the Texas Rangers established nearby Fort Fisher. Waco witnessed some of the wilder West by virtue of its position on the Chisholm Trail and was known in the days of the frontier as "Sixshooter Junction." Several local museums, restored homes, and collections in Waco commemorate the rich history of the region.

The home of Baylor University and Texas State Technical Institute, Waco also contains the state's largest municipal park and largest municipal lake. Other points of interest are the Central Texas Zoo and the old suspension bridge. The Brazos Queen, a replica of an 18th Century river boat, makes daily scenic excursions up and down Lake Brazos.

Agriculture has always been the principal reason for local prosperity, but is by no means the sole source. A diversified economy, including manufacturing, health care services, education, and food preparation, among others, insures the city's ongoing vitality.

THE CLIMATE OF WACO

The city of Waco is located on the Brazos River in the east-central portion of Texas. To the east lies the gently rolling Blackland Prairies, and to the west is the rolling to hilly Grande Prairie. Situated on the edge of the Gulf Coastal Plain, approximately 225 miles northwest of the nearest portion of the Gulf Coast, the climate of Waco is a combination of the humid climate of east Texas and the continental climate to the north, which has no natural southern boundary.

The influence of the maritime climate is felt most strongly in the spring, when warm, moist air moves over the area from the Gulf. This is the season of maximum precipitation, with May having a normal total of 4.57 inches. The normal annual precipitation is 32.08 inches. Yearly totals have ranged from 60.20 inches in 1905 to a minimum of 13.30 inches in 1917. The greatest 24-hour amount, 7.18 inches, was recorded on May 11, 1953.

Normal monthly temperatures range from 48.0° in January to a high of 85.5° in August, with a yearly normal of 67.2°. Summers are warm, with an average of 110 days of maximum temperatures above 90°. The hot weather is broken about four times a month by thunderstorms. The highest temperature ever recorded at Waco is 111° on August 12, 1936. Waco lies in the path of cold fronts or "northers," in the winter. Rapid temperature drops, sometimes as much as 20° in an hour, occur with the passage of these fronts. On the whole, however, winters are mild, extremely cold temperatures persisting for only a day or two. Temperatures fall below 32° on an average of 28 days a year. The lowest temperature ever recorded, 5° below zero, occurred on two dates almost exactly 50 years apart; February 12, 1899, and January 31, 1949. The latest date of temperature below 32° in spring was recorded April 13, 1940, and the earliest date in fall was October 22, 1911.

Severe storms are rare in the Waco area, the notable exception being a tornado which struck the central business section on May 11, 1953, causing 114 deaths and over $200,000,000 property damage. This was the first tornado ever reported in the immediate vicinity. An average of over 40 thunderstorms are recorded yearly. Thunderstorms are most frequent in April and May, the months of heaviest precipitation. Hail is rare in the area, as is snow or sleet, occurring on the average of two days a year.

The weather in the Waco area has considerable variation during the year, and results in a climate which is conducive to good health and stimulating outdoor activities.

Means and extremes above are from existing and comparable exposures. Annual extremes have been exceeded at other sites in the locality as follows: Maximum monthly snowfall 13.0 in December 1929 and earlier.

(a) Length of record, years, through the current year unless otherwise noted, based on January data.
(b) 70° and above at Alaskan stations.
* Less than one half.
T Trace.

NORMALS - Based on record for the 1941-1970 period.
DATE OF AN EXTREME - The most recent in cases of multiple occurrence.
PREVAILING WIND DIRECTION - Record through 1963.
WIND DIRECTION - Numerals indicate tens of degrees clockwise from true north. 00 indicates calm.
FASTEST MILE WIND - Speed is fastest observed 1-minute value when the direction is in tens of degrees.

WICHITA FALLS

Wichita Falls was named for the five-foot falls on Wichita River which were later washed away. The area has an oil-based economy that also manufactures electronic components, electrical controls, surgical supplies, air conditioning equipment, clothing and agricultural products. Nearby is the Sheppard Air Force Base, which is a technical training center. Wichita Falls also supports a symphony orchestra, museums, and theaters. The Museum and Art center features art, science, history and planetary exhibits.

There are 59 city parks which offer facilities for swimming, golf, tennis, picnicking, boating and camping. There are also playgrounds and fishing ponds for children and an amusement park for the kid in everyone. Lake Arrowhead State Park covers 524 acres and is located approximately 14 miles south of the city. Those interested in water-oriented activities find their way to this state park to enjoy fishing, swimming and water skiing. There are also campsites with utility hookups, rest rooms, showers, grocery stores, a boat ramp and a dump station.

Aside from Lake Arrowhead, there are several other lakes in the Wichita Falls area. Diversion Lake, owned by the city is located on the Wichita River. Also on this river are Lakes Kemp and Kickapoo and on Holliday Creek, Lake Wichita.

Every year in April, the citizenry of Wichita Falls holds its Spring Fling, an arts and crafts fair with booths, exhibits, demonstrations and music. June ushers in the Red River Rodeo and December has chili chefs competing in the Chili Cookers Pow-Wow.

THE CLIMATE OF WICHITA FALLS

Wichita Falls is located in the West Cross Timbers subdivision of the North Central Plains of Texas, about 10 miles south of the Red River and 400 miles northwest of the nearest portion of the Gulf of Mexico. The topography is gently rolling mesquite plain, and elevation in the area is near 1,000 feet.

This region lies between the humid subtropical climate of east Texas and a continental climate to the north and west. The climate of Wichita Falls is classified with the latter. It is characterized by rapid changes in temperature; marked extremes, both daily and annual; and by rather erratic rainfall.

The area lies in the path of polar air masses which move down from the north during the winter season. With the passage of cold fronts, or "northers," in the fall and winter, abrupt temperature drops, as much as 20° to 30° within an hour, sometimes occur. While the area is subject to a wide range of temperature, winters are on the whole relatively mild. The normal temperature for the coldest month, January, is 41.5°. Sub-zero temperatures occur in about 1 year in each 5-year period. The record lowest temperature in Wichita Falls, −5°, occurred in January, 1966; however, prior station locations indicate a reading of −12° in January, 1947. The summers in Wichita Falls are generally of the continental type, characterized by low humidity and good wind movement. Maximum temperatures of over 100° are frequent during the common long periods of hot weather. The month of July has the highest normal temperature with 85.8°. The August normal is a close second with 85.8°. The record highest temperature, 117°, occurred in June 1980.

The normal rainfall is 27.22 inches per year, but the distribution is erratic to such an extent that prolonged dry periods are common. Several lakes in the area provide water for domestic, industrial, and irrigation purposes. The greater part of the rainfall comes in the form of showers rather than general rains. Over 75 percent of the annual moisture occurs during the period from late March to mid-November; but dry periods of 3 to 4 weeks are to be expected during this time almost every year. While the dry conditions materially affect agriculture in this region, complete crop failure seldom results. Moderate flooding along Holliday Creek and the Wichita River, which run through the City, occur about once in each 10-year period. Snow is unimportant for moisture, averaging only 2 days a year, with snow measuring an inch or more.

Mean windspeeds average over 11 m.p.h. with southerly winds prevailing. Rather strong winds are observed in all months. While strong, gusty winds occur frequently, severe dust storms are rare. Most severe dust observed in the area is brought in from the north and west. This section enjoys excellent aviation weather. Flying activities are possible on all but a very few days of the year. Approximately 95 percent of the time the ceiling is 1,000 feet or more with visibility of 3 miles or more.

STATE LAW AND THE FILMMAKER

Film permits are not required in Texas.

There are, however, various routine state and municipal regulations which may apply to film production activities. They are regulatory in nature and generally require only a simple check with the agencies concerned to insure compliance.

Following are state laws most frequently encountered by filmmakers. As always please contact the Film Commission regarding special problems.

CHILD LABOR

State Law:

Under certain circumstances it may be necessary for a child under the age of 17 to obtain a "Child Labor Permit." Permits are issued by each County Judge and each production company should contact the County Judge, for the county in which it is filming, to determine if they are going to require a permit.

For further information concerning the Texas Child Labor Statutes, contact Larry E. Kosta, (512) 475-7001, Texas Department of Labor and Standards, P.O. Box 12157, Austin, Texas 78711.

Federal Law:

The U.S. Department of Labor Fair Labor Standards Act exempts children under 16 who are employed as actors or performers in television, motion picture, radio or theatrical productions.

HOTEL OCCUPANCY TAX

There exists in Texas a State Hotel Occupancy Tax, which is levied at the rate of three percent (3%) of the cost of any room furnished for occupancy at a rate of $2 or more per day. Each city in the state has the option to impose an additional Hotel Occupancy Tax not to exceed four percent (4%) upon the cost of any sleeping room.

A "Permanent Resident," however, is not subject to this tax. A "Permanent Resident" is defined as any occupant who has or shall have the right to occupancy of any room or rooms in a hotel for at least 30 consecutive days.

If the owner of a hotel and an occupant have an agreement established in advance that the occupant will remain in the room for 30 consecutive days, then the occupant is considered a resident and these first 30 days are not taxable. However, if the owner of the hotel and the occupant do not have such a previously arranged agreement and the occupant remains in the room for 30 consecutive days, then these first 30 days are subject to the State Hotel Occupancy Tax. After the 30 consecutive days, the occupant will be considered a "Permanent Resident" and such tax will no longer be levied.

For further information, contact Burrell Lankford or Mrs. Johnie Lou Hunt at the Miscellaneous Tax Division of the State Comptroller's Office, at (512) 475-1932.

TRAFFIC CONTROL

Traffic control, i.e. the closing of streets, highways, etc. for filmmaking, should always be coordinated with police officials.

In cities, contact the police chief. On state or county roads outside city limits, contact the sheriff of the county involved.

On any interstate highway, state highway, or farm to market road, obtain clearance from the Department of Public Safety through the Traffic Law Enforcement Division. (512) 452-0331.

TRANSPORTATION

Transportation of motion picture equipment into Texas is governed by regulations of the Texas Highway Department.

Texas has commercial license reciprocity agreements with all states except: Alaska, Alberta (Canada), Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin, Wyoming, and Alabama.

Vehicles from the states without reciprocity agreements have varying entry requirements. Operators should query the Highway Department for specific requirements for their state.

All commercial vehicles, if they have no prior agreements, should obtain 72-hour permits ($10) when crossing the Texas state line.

Vehicles from California entering Texas via Interstate 10 can obtain a 72-hour permit at Anthony, Texas. Other permit offices on the western side of the state are at: Van Horn, Pecos, Kermit, Andrews, Seminole, Muleshoe, Bovina, Hereford, Vega, Dalhart, and Stratford.

Generally, a fleet (most consider one or more commercial vehicles a fleet) or commercial vehicles from non-reciprocity states should obtain prorated registration if operating in Texas more than 72 hours. Such registration, based on mileage, gives vehicles full Texas registration. This applies to California, plus New Mexico, Nevada, and Washington vehicles. Contact the Texas Highway Department for more information concerning long-term prorated registration.

It is recommended that you contact the Highway Department as soon as possible regarding your transportation plans. Usually, all requirements can be satisfied before your trip begins.

Ronnie McKee and Jerry Burleson of the Highway Department have worked with motion picture companies many times, and will assist you on all commercial vehicle questions. You should contact them at: Texas Highway Dept., Motor Vehicle Division, 40th and Jackson, Austin, Texas 78779, Telephone (512) 475-7670.

A useful booklet, General Information Governing Commercial Vehicle Operation in Texas, can be obtained through the Highway Department or the Film Commission.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

The Texas Unemployment Compensation Act was amended in 1977 to extend coverage to all political subdivisions, agricultural employers of ten or more employees for twenty weeks during a year or who pay $20,000 in wages during a calendar quarter, employers of domestic service who pay wages of $1,000 or more in a quarter and to non-profit schools who are not institutions of higher education.

In addition to the newly covered employing units, employing units will become liable for unemployment taxes if they meet the following criteria:

(1) If they have one or more employees for some portion of a day in as many as twenty different calendar weeks in the calendar year 1972, or any calendar year thereafter. (Corporations should count paid corporate officers as employees.)

(2) If they pay wages of as much as $1,500 in any calendar quarter of a year after 1971.

(3) If they acquire the business or assets of an "employer" who is liable for unemployment tax payments.

(4) If they become liable under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act for any calendar year. (Beginning January 1, 1972, the Federal law covers employers of one or more employees.)

(5) If they are a nonprofit organization exempt from income tax under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954—and if they have four or more employees on some part of one day in each of twenty different weeks in any calendar year after 1971.

Employers are required to pay taxes at the rate of 2.7% on wages up to $6,000 annually for each employee. Employers after 18 months are eligible for a computed tax rate based on their experience. The minimum tax rate is .01% and the maximum is 4%.

Additional information on unemployment compensation can be obtained from Elmer Entrop, John Jennings, or Eldon Sundbeck, (512) 397-4411, or by writing Tax Department, Texas Employment Commission, 101 East 15th Street, Austin, Texas 78701.

WORKERS' COMPENSATION

Although workers' compensation is not compulsory for private employers in Texas, nearly all employers of labor are subject to its provisions, and failure to comply deprives employers of certain common law defenses should an employee file suit for an on-the-job injury. Compliance is gained by purchasing a workers' compensation policy.

Workers' compensation insurance is obtainable through private insurance companies. Rates are set by the State Board of Insurance. As of September 1, 1980, the rate for workers in motion picture production in Texas was 3.42 per $100 salary up to $300 per week. The rates are subject to annual adjustment.

Companies entering Texas from other states can usually arrange for extension of their current compensation coverage to Texas provided their insurance company is licensed to operate in Texas.

Additional information can be obtained from Edward O. Kasper, Director, or Dom Dobias, Assistant Director, (512) 475-2136, Casualty Insurance Division, Texas Board of Insurance, 1110 San Jacinto, Austin, Texas, 78786.

TEXAS WEATHER

Good Weather, the location Muse, smiles on Texas most of the time. According to the U.S. Weather Service, Texas has an average of 250 days of sunshine each year.

Rainfall varies from practically none to moderate, with about eight inches annually in the sparse West, gradually increasing to 46 inches annually in East Texas and along the Gulf Coast.

There is almost no snow, except in the Panhandle and the Davis and Guadalupe mountains of the Big Bend.

Because it lies in the sub-tropical zone, Texas has warm, moderate temperatures, averaging 64 degrees annually. The average is slightly lower in the Panhandle (59 degrees) and slightly higher in the Rio Grande Valley (74 degrees).

Texas skies are well-known for their brilliant sunset and sunrise hues and the unhazed, uncluttered daylight blues.

All of this can mean production savings, shooting here when other states are too cold, too wet, too dirty or too drab.

For more specific information, we have included climatological summaries of cities in each of the state's major areas in the Major City Information section. You can find anything you need to know about rain, sun, wind, snow, humidity and temperature any month of the year. If that's not enough, call the Texas Film Commission.

APPLICATION FOR LISTING

The Texas Production Manual will be revised during 1981 for a release in 1982. If you wish to be included in the next manual, fill out the form below and mail it to the Texas Film Commission, P.O. Box 12428, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711, (512) 475-3785. The final deadline for entries is September 1, 1981.

Fill in any blanks applicable in your case, using back and margins if necessary. We will furnish additional copies of this form on request, or you can xerox this one.
